_____ In presenting the Compagnia di San Paolo's Report for 2005, I wish to underscore the importance of this compte rendu, dictated as it is by the now consolidated commitment to transparency towards the community: a valuable opportunity to reflect on the progress made and the goals achieved, the springboard for the attainment of our proposals for the future. We are, in fact, well aware that the satisfactory outcome of a project depends on close examination of what has preceded it.

In the light of the changes in our ever more variegated and globalised society, it should not be forgotten that the fast pace that is its hallmark is both the overt to growth and development and at the same time the cause of exclusion of substantial sections of the community that discover - sometimes dramatically - they have been left aside because they could not keep up.

Both local and global settings, therefore, are moving both quickly and slowly and greatly require the presence of those who can secure balanced, widespread growth by supporting those who lag behind in the race towards development. Thanks to their recognised standing at the heart of the scientific, social, educational, artistic and cultural panorama, foundations should set out to provide such a presence. Of this, the Compagnia di San Paolo, indeed, is fully conscious. Founded at Turin in 1563 as a body bent on social justice, it has always found the ways and means it needed to keep faith with its mission. The economy of society has changed many times and in many ways along the course of nearly 500 years. The Compagnia, however, has remained the same, capable of playing its part in tune with the times on every occasion.

The resources set aside by the Compagnia in 2005 totalled 134.8 million euros and were allocated to 820 initiatives within the compass of its six institutional sectors: Scientific, economic and juridical research, Education, Art, Cultural heritage and activities, Health and Welfare. In terms of numbers, as can be seen on the following pages, we are growing apace. Greater satisfaction, however, stems from the approach that inspires our efforts and results in an ever more evident ability to operate in the medium and long term, to reconcile the dimension of development with that of its redistribution, to both innovatively and appropriately interpret the needs of the underprivileged ranks of society.

Local, yet not localist, the Compagnia is both conscious of its own roots and its traditional target areas (Turin and Piedmont, Genoa and Liguria, Naples and Campania), and open to what is new, deserving and excellent. This flexibility has accompanied its realisation that it has grown into a European foundation whose voice is heard on the international stage.

True to this pattern, the Compagnia is the only Italian foundation to have given rise to a non-profit group, whose core is composed of its permanent organisations: Fondazione Collegio Carlo Alberto, Fondazione per l'Arte, Fondazione per la Scuola, Istituto Superiore Mario Boella, SiTI - Istituto Superiore sui Sistemi Territoriali per l'Innovazione, and Ufficio Pio. This fine array enables it to elaborate and handle long-term programmes of its own making and complete the implementation of its own projects in addition to supporting those proposed by others. Furthermore, in 2005 a initial trial was made of ad hoc intersectorial projects and the foundations were laid for the commencement of a new neuroscience programme at the start of 2006 and the addition of a new permanent organisation concerned with human genetics.

Lastly, a reference must be made to the pleasant memories bequeathed by the recent Olympics. Pictures of Turin 2006 showed millions of people around the world a city and region that are beautiful, civil and European, fascinating and likeable.

We are proudly recall that the Compagnia di San Paolo backed the city right from the time of its initial candidature in the collective effort that led to the assignment of the Games, with initiatives in all its sectors, and with particular concern for the successful outcome of the Paralympics, which outshone its predecessors in size. We are proud of having invested more than 30 million euros devoted to 130 projects ranging from Health to Art and mostly designed to perpetuate the Olympic heritage, together with 12.9 million for the Paralympics that will serve to preserve an understanding and awareness the practice of sport on the part of the disabled through the facilities set up during the Olympic period.

The success of Turin 2006 is the best omen for a future crowned by growth and development underpinned by the constant support of the Compagnia di San Paolo.

Glossary

———— Here follows a glossary of the most recurrent terms pertaining to the Compagnia's operational methods, planning and reporting instruments.

Accountability:

The foundation's capability of being "accountable" (responsible) for its activities. In addition to the information given to the public on allocations, accountability entails good practices – willingly agreed or following standards/codes of conduct – to guarantee fair relations with grantseekers/beneficiaries, the disclosure of selection criteria and the assessment results of supported initiatives.

The notion of accountability implies the identification of the subjects to whom the Foundation is accountable, ranging from the Foundation's internal structure (Governing bodies and staff) to grantseekers/beneficiaries, to supervisory authorities and the general public.

Annual Report:

It is the document the Compagnia has been drawing up and publishing since 1997, in Italian and English, in a printed version and on the website, presenting the annual Financial statement. The Annual Report includes a comprehensive list of grants and a digest of the economic-financial trends of the Compagnia, with particular reference to its wealth management.

Application form:

It is the form to be filled in by grantseekers to submit their application. There is no standard form: in each foundation application forms may differ in format, underlying principles, degree of complexity. The Compagnia's application forms presently consist of two parts: the first (Applicant's profile) must be filled in with all relevant information about the applicant; the second (Initiative's profile) refers to information on the suggested initiative.

The Compagnia's application forms are available in their printed version and on the Internet (see the Compagnia's website: www.compagnia.torino.it). Calls for proposals have their own ad hoc application forms.

Bilancio di Missione:

it is a social communication tool allowing non-profit organisations, like foundations, to account to their internal and external stakeholders for the activities set up during the year in order to pursue their "mission". In the case of former banking foundations, the drafting criteria for the bilancio di missione are stated by the Guideline Deed of the Ministry of the Treasury on the 19th of April, 2001. Pursuant to the aforesaid provision, the bilancio di missione is the second chapter of the Annual Report in the annual account section, therefore it is part and parcel of the latter.

Call for proposals:

It is a method of intervention by which the Compagnia calls for external bodies to submit proposals on priority topics in the Compagnia's view. The call for proposals, whose financial resources and deadline are fixed in advance, can have a national character or be limited to specific regions or areas.

Usually, the ranking of proposals which were received and accepted is decided by a set of requisites.

The outcome is the total or partial support of selected projects. Call for proposals are always published on the Compagnia's website (www.compagnia.torino.it).

Field of interest:

It is a field of activity identified within each theme area. It indicates the priority fields of the Foundation. The fields of interest, originally set in the Multi-annual planning guidelines, can be subject to slight changes when strategic guidelines are defined.

Grant:

It is a contribution awarded by a funding foundation or any another subject to pursue institutional objectives.

Multi-annual planning guidelines:

It is the document drawn up by the Consiglio Generale of the Compagnia during the first year of its mandate.

For each term of office of the Consiglio (four years), it outlines the strategies, priorities, objectives as well as the programmes and directions according to the sectors and methods of intervention.

Permanent organisations:

The Compagnia operates also through its permanent organisations, ie bodies or institutions with a specific expertise and particular relevance on the territory.

At present the Compagnia has six permanent organisations: the Foundation for Art; the Foundation for Schools; the Ufficio Pio (pious office); the Mario Boella Advanced Institute; the Collegio Carlo Alberto Foundation; SiTI - (Higher Institute for Territorial Systems for Innovation).

Programmes:

It is a coordinated and integrated approach aimed at fulfilling the objectives consistent with the Compagnia's mission.

Having a multi-year character, programmes can develop a cross-sector approach, integrating directly managed initiatives, through project funding and institutional contributions to external bodies' activities, also through calls for proposals.

The Company has so far approved the Museum Programme and the Oncology Programme.

Project (or "Initiative"):

It is the total, or partial, financial and (wherever possible and expedient) technical and organisational support to individual projects and initiatives. It is one of the methods of intervention of the Compagnia to perform its tasks. Projects can be designed within the Compagnia or presented by external actors. Projects and initiatives include support to pre-design activities and experiments.

The Compagnia privileges co-financing and fosters cooperation among grantseekers. Projects can be supported by the Compagnia also through calls for proposals.

Rules for institutional activities:

It is the document approved by the Consiglio Generale to regulate procedures and criteria to pursue its statutory objectives, mainly the resource allocation criteria with respect to institutional activities, the rules to plan, determine, manage and assess such activities, as well as their popularisation.

Sectors:

They comprise 6 areas, foreseen by article 3 of the Compagnia's Articles of Association (in force since March 2000), in which the Compagnia endeavours to pursue "goals of social good, to foster civic, cultural and economic development". The six sectors are: scientific, economic and juridical research; education; art; preservation and valorisation of cultural heritage and activities and of environmental assets; health; assistance to the socially deprived categories.

Stakeholder:

The term generally describes all those having an "interest" in the Foundation's activities, from the staff to administrative bodies, from grantseekers and beneficiaries to local actors and the general public.

Strategic guidelines

(or "Annual planning guidelines"):

It is the document drawn up by the Consiglio Generale within the framework of the medium-term objectives set by the Multi-annual planning guidelines, defining annual methods of intervention, with particular reference to new programmes and resource allocation.

The Guidelines are available in their printed version and on the website.

Support to institutional activities:

The Compagnia can support the institutional activities (activities performed by a non profit organisation to pursue its social, cultural, scientific objectives) of a limited number of bodies possessing particular influence and reputation in the sector and territory in which they operate. Ordinary administrative expenses are excluded from support to institutional activities.

The Compagnia's rules of procedure define the adequate maximum limits (absolute and relative), the monitoring and reporting requirements, the criteria for alternation that promote the search for self-sufficiency and comparison among the various supported organisations.

Theme Area:

While planning its activities, the Compagnia defines as a theme area a priority field in the bulk of its activities. Within each theme priority fields of interest are then defined. Usually, theme areas have a strategic and multi-year character whereas fields of interest are subject to changes when Annual planning guidelines are drawn up.

Institutional activities in 2005

The Compagnia di San Paolo's headquarters at corso Vittorio Emanuele II, 75-Turin

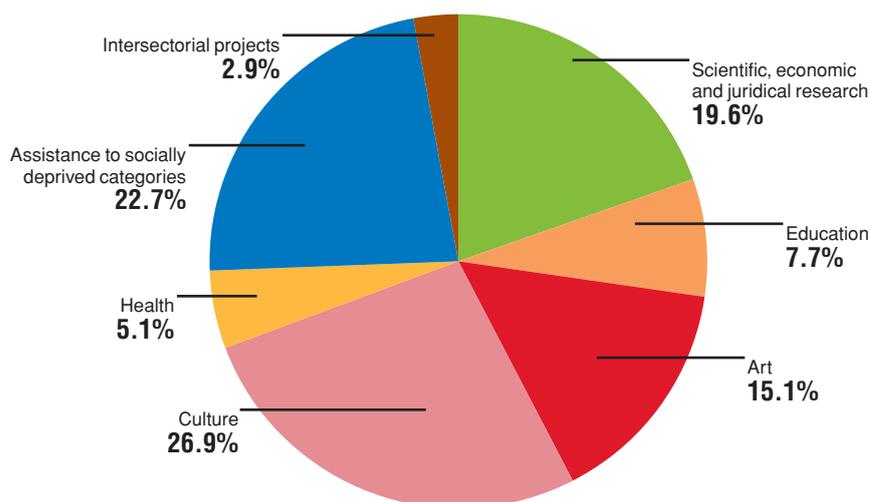

2005 in brief¹

The funds allocated by the Compagnia di San Paolo in 2005 to further the activities of its institutional sectors (Scientific, economic and juridical research, Education, Art, Cultural heritage and activities, Health, Assistance and Intersectorial projects) amounted to 134.7 million euros and were spread over 820 initiatives.

This sum was divided among the seven sectors as follows:

Sector	Grants	%	Amount	%
Scientific, economic and juridical research	161	19.6	30,000,000	22.3
Education	63	7.7	16,000,000	11.9
Art	124	15.1	26,000,000	19.3
Culture	220	26.9	15,000,000	11.1
Health	42	5.1	15,000,000	11.1
Assistance to socially deprived categories	186	22.7	28,000,000	20.8
Intersectorial projects	24	2.9	4,729,500	3.5
Total	820	100.0	134,729,500	100.0

Breakdown per number of grants

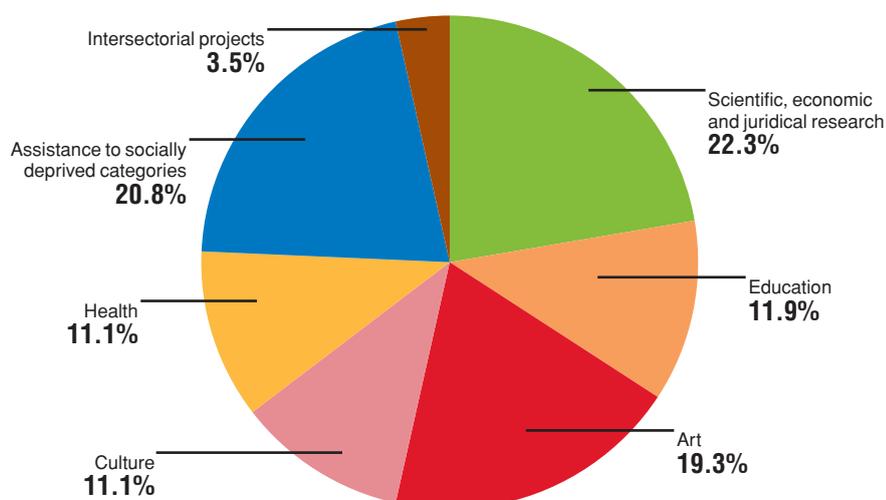

The resources initially earmarked for these purposes in the Budget for 2005 totalled 125.4 million euros. During the course of the operating year, additional resources amounting to € 9,329,500 became available. The grand total for the year - € 134,729,500 - corresponded to an increase of 13.3% compared with 2004, when 119 million euros were laid out for 721 initiatives.

¹The currency used in this Report is Euro

The provision for 2005 was supplemented by € 8,680,982 shared out among the "Funds for the support of volunteer groups" as required by Law No. 266 of 1991, plus a prudent allocation of the same amount.

Breakdown per grants amount

The breakdown of the allocations by value brackets is illustrated below. It will be seen that 65 allocations consisted of more than 500,000 euros and accounted for 55.9% of the total, compared with 34 equivalent to 53.5% in 2004.

Euro value bracket	Grants	%	Amount	%
0 ≥ 50,000	362	44.2	8,596,126	6.4
50,000 ≥ 500,000	393	47.9	50,833,802	37.7
> 500,000	65	7.9	75,299,572	55.9
Total	820	100.0	134,729,500	100.0

All but three of the 820 allocations supported specific initiatives in the activity sectors, including those funded within the calls for proposals put out by the Art sector ("Cantieri d'Arte", 36 initiatives) and the Cultural heritage and activities sector ("In Compagnia della Musica", 59 initiatives; "In Compagnia del Teatro", 41 initiatives).

Furthermore the provision of 6,855,000 euros from the Research and Education funds during the course of the year brought the resources available for future science and health programmes up to 12,255,000 euros, while 4.5 million posted to the Education budget were added to the fund for future restructuring of the Carlo Alberto College at Moncalieri, Province of Turin and 4.5 million (on the Art budget) were allocated to the Museum Programme.

A total of 4,019,090 euros were drawn from the Museums Programme funds for 5 initiatives, and a further 2,255,000 euros were devoted to "scientific and health programmes" (6 initiatives linked to the possible launching of a long-term neuroscience programme).

The following table illustrates the geographical breakdown of the grants made in 2005, with particular reference to the Compagnia's primary areas of interest (Turin and Piedmont, Genoa and Liguria, Naples and Campania).

Area	Grants	%	Amount	%
Turin and its province	517	62.9	101,151,264	75
Rest of Piedmont	93	11.3	8,925,220	6.6
Liguria	71	8.8	10,431,750	7.8
Campania	17	2.1	1,581,000	1.2

Other countries	25	3.1	2,009,300	1.5
Total	820	100.0	134,729,500	100.0

The following summary of the amounts allocated (in thousands of euros) to each institutional sector over the course of the last ten years illustrates the Compagnia's progress since its commencement on the occasion of the privatisation of the conferring bank (now Sanpaolo IMI) at the beginning of 1997, and the stable level of its resources above the 100 million euros per annum mark ("Funds for the support of volunteer groups" excluded) since 2001.

NB: Amounts rounded to Euro '000. Grants down to 1995 were made to three sectors: Culture, Health and Social. Those for 1992 to 1995 inclusive totalled 31.4 million euros.

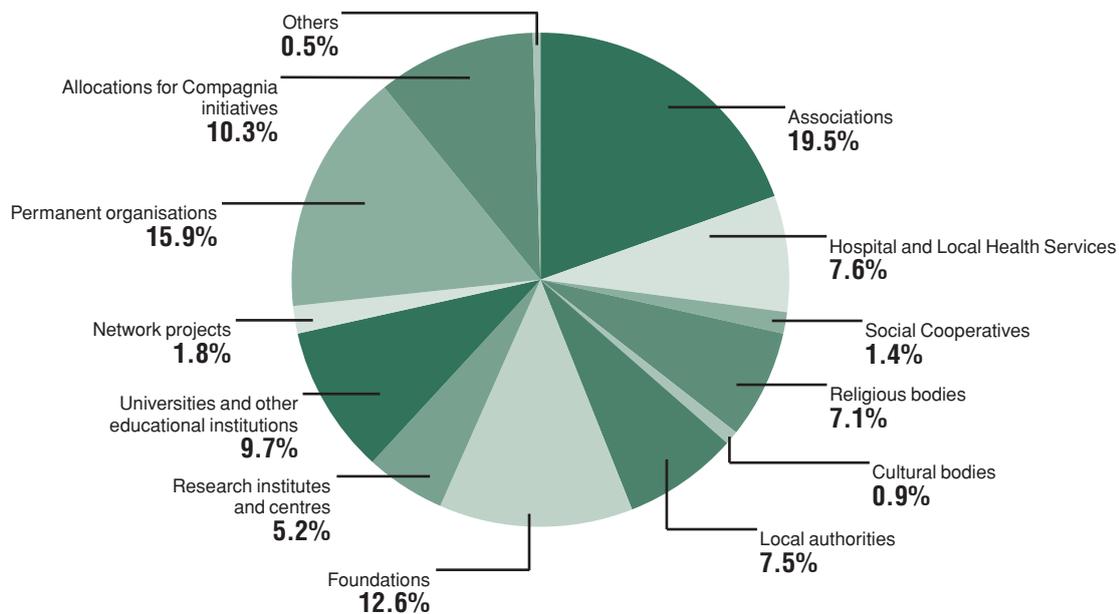

The grants allocated during 2005 are divided in accordance with the types of beneficiaries in the table below.

% Breakdown of the grants amount per each beneficiary branch

In accordance with the Compagnia's programming guidelines, the work of each sector is devoted to substantial thematic areas composed of lines of activity singled out as priorities. Moreover, as mentioned earlier, ad hoc "intersectorial projects" were added in 2005. The following profiles illustrate the activities of each sector with reference to its thematic areas and lines of activity. They are followed by sections dealing with the funds for the support of volunteer groups, the subjects chosen as an experiment in 2005 for the intersectorial projects, the progress of the Museums Programme and the path that led to the commencement - at the end of February 2006 - of the Neuroscience Programme.

The first part of the Report ends with a synopsis of the many initiatives endorsed by the Compagnia during the process that led from Turin's bid to its holding of the Winter Olympics and Paralympics in 2006.

The second part of the Report is devoted to an overview of the activities of the Compagnia's permanent organisations during 2005. These organisations, in fact, constitute an essential component of the Foundation when viewed as a non-profit group.

The third part of the document consists of a complete and detailed list of the grants approved by the Compagnia's Management Committee in 2005, their beneficiaries and the initiatives thus supported, and the amounts allocated, and an extensive overview of the Foundation's financial and capital management policies during the course of the year.

Grants breakdown per field of interest

Scientific research

A total of 57 grants amounting to about 21 million euros were approved during 2005. Two were devoted to future health programmes. The Compagnia concentrated its attention on subjects associated with scientific and technological excellence centres and the popularisation of science.

Scientific and technological excellence centres

Three lines of activity were identified: life sciences, nanotechnologies and microstructures, and information and communication technologies (ICT). The main step taken with regard to the life sciences was in favour of the University of Turin's Molecular Biotechnologies Centre, which combines individual skills to facilitate the development of high-level research projects. The Compagnia contributed towards the acquisition of innovative equipment for the start-up of the Centre (see the box below). Another measure in this mainstream was the Compagnia's support for research to be carried out at the National Cardiovascular Research Institute in Bologna on the possible employment of stem cells in the treatment of cardiovascular disorders. Further progress was made by the Promotion Committee with regard to the constitution (scheduled for the first half of 2006) of an Istituto Superiore Europeo Interdisciplinare di Genetica Umana (ISEIGU) to be located in Turin and promoted by Compagnia and the Turin University and Polytechnic. The Compagnia has already undertaken to provide a grant of not less than 20 million euros for the establishment of the Institute in view of the launching (in February 2006) of a Neuroscience Programme (as illustrated in a subsequent section of this Report). The Compagnia has already devoted particular attention to initiatives designed to draw the most benefit from skills in Turin and enhancing the organisation in which they operate.

Nanotechnologies and microstructures are fields that cut across several disciplines. The Compagnia's support in 2005 was given to the University of Turin's Department of Inorganic, Physical and Molecular Chemistry for the study of nanostructured surfaces and interphases (see the NIS box), and the Turin Polytechnic for a 2nd-level master's degree course on microstructures and nanotechnologies applied to health. Collaboration continued with the Bioengineering Centre - Laboratorio di Ingegneria del Sistema Neuromuscolare e della riabilitazione motoria (LISiN), a Turin Polytechnic research unit that works in conjunction with the Consorzio per la Ricerca e l'Educazione Permanente (COREP). In 2005, the Compagnia co-funded an Italian-German project dealing with the application of bioengineering technologies in clinical research. ICT was among the fields in which the Compagnia achieved its best results. Here its permanent organisation is the Istituto Superiore Mario Boella (ISMB) in conjunction with the Turin Polytechnic (see the section devoted to the Permanent Organisations).

Rendering of the external structure of the Molecular Biotechnology Centre

Centro per le Biotecnologie Molecolari (CBM) - Turin

CBM, the new Molecular Biotechnology Centre of Turin University, is installed on the former site of the Faculty of Veterinary Science. It aims to bring together persons with varying biotechnological skills to facilitate the development of high-level research projects. Groups that have collaborated for years and are currently attached to specific Departments (Genetics, Biology and Biochemistry, Inorganic, Physical and Molecular Chemistry, Clinical and Biological Sciences, Internal Medicine) will operate side by side in the Centre, which will have room for about 800 students and a further 250 lecturers and technical staff on a surface of 15,000 m² spread over three floors. Lectures will be given in three halls with 200 seats, three with 100 and two with 80. Practical work will be done in laboratories equipped for biological, chemical and IT exercises. The Centre will conduct I and II level Biotechnology degree courses, I level Master in Bioinformatics and research doctorates in Molecular Biotechnologies, Medical Physiopathology, Functional Genomics applied to translational research, Immunology and Cell Biology. Its research lines will principally concern molecular mechanisms in physiopathologic processes to lay the bases for new diagnostic and therapeutic approaches. There will also be an "incubator of entrepreneurial ideas" connected to Piedmont's scientific and technological Parks to provide the skills needed to protect research results with patents, manage patent portfolios and make contact with existing industrial enterprises.

Turin University resorted to project financing to create the CBM. In addition to the planning and construction of the Centre, this covers its management and maintenance. The consortium promoting the project financing includes AEM (Azienda Energetica Metropolitana di Torino), DE-GA (a joint stock company operating in the building field with headquarters in Turin), Finpiemonte and Sinloc (a Compagnia investee company). Work on the Centre started at the end of 2003 and should be completed during 2006. The Compagnia contributed 1.5 million euros towards the start-up of the Centre, mainly for the acquisition of equipment.

In addition to its annual contribution towards ISMB's activities, the Compagnia allocated a substantial grant to the initiatives associated with Distretto ICT - Torino Wireless.

Scientific dissemination

To meet the widespread demand for a fuller understanding of science, the Compagnia gave further support to high-quality initiatives addressed to the general public, namely those prepared by Turin's Associazione CentroScienza: GiovedìScienza, Extra GiovedìScienza, TorinoLab, Webdays and the XVth Scientific and Technological Culture Week, consolidated appointments with the new frontiers of science technology through meetings and discussions with internationally renowned researchers and scholars. A significant contribution was also made towards the 3rd Festival of Science in Genoa, with particular attention to its links with schools. Other initiatives funded by the Compagnia in 2005 included the first "Porte aperte

The "NIS" Centre's Raman spectroscope and three examples of its use for investigation in different materials

NIS - Nanostructured Interphases and Surfaces

The "NIS - Nanostructured Interphases and Surfaces" Centre in Turin is the outcome of a joint initiative of the physics, chemistry and biology research groups of six Departments of Turin University and the "Amedeo Avogadro" University of Eastern Piedmont. The Centre houses many disciplines: chemistry, biology, solid state metallurgy and physics, involving around 90 researchers. In 2003, it was recognised as a "centre of excellence" by the Italian Ministry for Education, the Universities and Research, and was granted a three-year contribution.

The Centre's objective is to carry out research on properties connected - in certain materials - with the structure of surfaces and interphases between a material and the context in which it is inserted, and on the application of nanostructured surfaces in various technological fields. It is therefore endowed with a multidisciplinary surface analysis laboratory equipped to apply the main microscopic and spectroscopic investigation techniques. Among its objectives NIS also includes high-level training through a Doctorate in Material Science, the creation of career opportunities for young researchers and the promotion of collaboration between the University and industry. In the first phase of its activity, NIS purchased front-runner instrumentation which it shared out among the various Departments, and organised international seminars and initiatives oriented to the business sector. Five research lines, organized in multidisciplinary projects, have been activated on different classes of materials.

The Compagnia has contributed 1.2 million euros towards the outfitting of the Centre's laboratories, completion of their instrumentation and the backing of doctorates and research allowances.

Two of the exhibits prepared for the "Doors Open to Innovation" initiative

Porte Aperte all'Innovazione (Doors Open to Innovation)

The first "Doors Open to Innovation" was held in Turin from 21 to 28 October 2005. It set out to publicise the heritage of technological innovation inherent in Turin and its province, stimulate interest - particularly on the part of schools - and in those who are concerned with new technologies and research, and provide institutions that develop innovations the chance to come into contact with the general public.

The 80 entrepreneurs, laboratories, research centres and University Departments that took part in the initiative organised educational visits to their premises. Two of the Compagnia's permanent organisations added their contribution to the event: ISMB opened its Photonic, Satellite Navigation and Multimedial Cell Phone Technologies laboratories to the public. SiTI opened its premises and organised a visit on the theme "What will Porta Nuova Station's new façade look like?".

The Compagnia was a member of the "Porte Aperte" Promotion Committee and contributed 100,000 euros towards its organisation.

Economic and juridical research

Grants totalling about 9 million euros were allocated to Economic and juridical research during 2005 to support 104 initiatives, compared with 10.5 million for 86 initiatives in 2004.

Economic and public policy studies

The Fondazione Collegio Carlo Alberto, a permanent organisation set up by the Compagnia and the University of Turin, was fully worked up in 2005. During this watershed year, the project for its radical restructuring was approved and work began on a series of operations that will convert it into a modern economics and public policy research and higher education centre. A start was also made on the definition of its joint activities and institutional, scientific and organisational relationships with the centres that refer to it.

SiTI - Istituto Superiore sui Sistemi Territoriali per l'Innovazione, another of the Compagnia's permanent organisations, elaborates multidisciplinary projects of significance for the definition of public policies

A session of the EPC's Advisory Council

Three-year agreement between the Compagnia di San Paolo and EPC - European Policy Centre

The Compagnia has signed a strategic collaboration agreement for the period 2005-2007 with EPC - European Policy Centre. Located in Brussels, EPC is one of the main think tanks for EU policies and has a wide network of connections and contacts with European institutions and its 400 members composed of enterprises, foundations, NGOs and diplomatic bureaux.

The Centre sets out to promote the understanding and in-depth study of matters connected with European integration, in particular the EU's international role and its relations with its citizens, by means of studies, publications and policy proposals aimed at maintaining constant dialogue between institutional stakeholders, civil companies, enterprises, universities and research.

The collaboration agreement envisages a three-year commitment of 1.2 million euros. The Compagnia is represented on the EPC's policy and management boards in the same way as the King Baudouin Foundation, the EPC's other strategic partner.

The agreement is designed to support the EPC and elaborate joint initiatives regarding four far-ranging topics: Development of European democracy and governance; Europe in the world and global governance; Development of the European economic and social model(s); Integration and migration. The Compagnia's role will be that of a "facilitator". It will secure the network involvement of "excellent" scientific subjects, especially its permanent organisations, starting with the Fondazione Collegio Carlo Alberto and its resident centres and research and advanced training initiatives. Since the EPC is also concerned with technological innovation and the safety and security of infrastructures and local areas, cooperation with ISMB and SiTI is a possibility.

The Compagnia has long devoted particular attention to issues relating to economic and social research and European integration. Through its agreement with the EPC, it will involve a series of research institutes and reference interlocutors in the four topics mentioned above to enable them to promote collaboration networks comprising researchers, politicians, and business people, and spread their results through publications and events arranged jointly with the EPC, one of the most authoritative EU centres devoted to research on European public policies.

in conjunction with other scientific subjects supported by the Compagnia, namely studies of the impact and sustainability of infrastructures and the security of persons, places and lines of communication. It also monitors projects supported by the Compagnia.

Sections devoted to these organisations and their operations during 2005 will be found in the second part of this Report. The Compagnia has supported socioeconomic and juridical research in fields of interest to its sectors, especially social policies, and attention has been directed to the relations between the local and the European and international compass of the issues examined. Studies in the mainstream concerned with The future of the North-West assessed in both absolute and comparative terms this area's competitive standing and development prospects.

Questions of Immigration and citizenship rights are examined with reference to FIERI - Forum Internazionale ed Europeo di Ricerche sull'Immigrazione. In-depth assessments were made of the connections between this issue and economic development and the evolution of social policies and the legislative and institutional picture, together with their implications for EU and international relations.

Italy and Germany in Europe

In 2005, the Compagnia again directed its attention to issues associated with international relationships and European integration, particularly Italian-German cooperation, an area in which it is engaged both as a supporter of the initiatives of the Villa Vigoni Italian-German Centre, of which it is a supporting member, such as the Colloquio Vigoni per la politica Europea, devoted to "The future of foreign politics and European safety. Italian and German points of view", and the project "Strengthened collaboration between Italy and Germany to build a European civil society", and through its involvement in initiatives with German foundations, such as the project on "Federalism and Regionalisation in Europe - Optimising Multi-Level Governance in the EU" promoted in partnership with the Bertelsmann Stiftung and in conjunction with the Centro Studi sul Federalismo. Mention may also be made of the 120,000 euros granted to the Institut für Europäische Politik - IEP, Berlin, to support the project "The EU as a Global Player - Strengths and Weaknesses of the CFSP and ESDP as seen from an Italian-German Angle", whose four workshops will promote the dialogue between Italian and German experts on EU foreign policy and security, and on the general question of Europe's global role.

In conjunction with ISPI (Istituto per gli Studi di Politica Internazionale) in Milan, of which the Compagnia is an emeritus member, IEP coordinates the "Italian-German Forum" whose objective is to maintain a continuous exchange of opinions on topics of European policy between leading figures on the Italian and German political and economic stage. The Compagnia's support for the Berlin think tank is further evidence of the priority it assigns to assessment of the joint standing of Italy and Germany in the process of European integration.

European integration and international relations

Support was provided for the work of both Italian think tanks, such as IAI - Istituto Affari Internazionali, Rome, and Milan's ISPI - Istituto per gli Studi di Politica Internazionale, and the EPC - European Policy Centre in Brussels, with which a cooperation agreement has been signed (see the box on page 27).

Europe's international role was examined in the third annual Transatlantic Trends, a survey of European and American public opinions on international policy issues conducted in conjunction with the German Marshall Fund of the United States, and in the second edition of the European Foreign and Security Policy Studies programme promoted with the Volkswagenstiftung and the Stiftelsen Riksbanken Jubileumsfond to support the growth of a new generation of European foreign policy and defence experts.

Enhancement of Turin's status as the home of "centres of excellence" in the field of international studies was aided by the Compagnia's financial and operative support of the city's Centro di Alti Studi sulla Cina Contemporanea, of which the Compagnia is a founder member, and the launching of Paralleli - Istituto Euromediterraneo del Nord Ovest (illustrated in the box below).

In the human rights and development line of activity, the Compagnia continued to support the UN's facility in Turin through strengthening of its ties with the city and local universities.

The presentation meeting of Paralleli - Istituto Euromediterraneo del Nord-Ovest

Paralleli - Istituto Euromediterraneo del Nord-Ovest

In 2005 the Compagnia confirmed its interest in closer examination of the EU's international standing vis-à-vis the nations on the southern shore of the Mediterranean. A contribution of 200,000 euros was made to support the first year of activity of Paralleli - Istituto Euromediterraneo del Nord-Ovest, also co-founded by SITI, one of the Compagnia's permanent organisations, and FIERI - Forum Internazionale ed Europeo di Ricerche sull'Immigrazione.

Paralleli is located in Turin. It will contribute towards the relaunching of Euromediterranean cooperation on political, economical, social and cultural matters in accordance with the contents of the Euromediterranean Partnership agreement signed by the EU and the Mediterranean countries to favour the creation of an area of political and economical stability in the region. In collaboration with other national and international research institutes, Paralleli supports decentralised cooperation and migrant integration initiatives, produces studies and publications, and promotes training and consultancy activities for public administrations interested in Euromediterranean cooperation.

Education

Grants totalling 16 million euros were allocated to this sector during 2005 to support 63 initiatives. One allocation was devoted to future science and health programmes. Use was also made of 1,600 euros posted to previous operating years.

Grants breakdown per field of interest

In keeping with its choice of topics in 2004, the Compagnia continued to support two priority areas: development of the university system, in association with the Research sector, and the promotion of training policies, activities and methods. About 10% of the total allocations was set aside as a provision for future science and health programmes.

Development of the university system

The Compagnia confirmed and reinforced its commitment to promotion of the excellence of the universities in Piedmont and the other areas in which it is specifically interested. Its attention was concentrated more on "infrastructural" and service components as opposed to structural measures.

An example in this respect is the outfitting of the laboratories of the Polimedia project. Conducted since 2004 by ISMB and the Turin Polytechnic, this project envisages the creation of a centre for research and training in the field of multimedia contents in conjunction with organisations such as Turin's Virtual Reality Multimedia Park.

As to the development of structures, the project for functional restructuring of Collegio Carlo Alberto has been approved. The Compagnia will bear the entire cost of the works, whereas for most of the other measures the choice has fallen on projects relating to the establishment of laboratories and the remediation and renovation of libraries. The most substantial achievement has been the establishment and enhancement of specialised laboratories for the University's Faculty of Mathematical, Physical and Natural Sciences (see the box on the following page).

Interest was also renewed in the elaboration of innovative forms and models of a university college through support for completion of the constructional revamping of the San Paolo section of the Renato Einaudi College.

Further evidence of the wish to strengthen the local university system can be seen in the Compagnia's support for openness and attractiveness of the university system through its contribution towards advanced training courses attended by students and lecturers from abroad.

Exchanges between Italian and Bengali universities, an area in which the University of Turin is well to the fore, comprised an interesting model of internationalisation designed to integrate scientific, artistic and cultural skills. The Compagnia encouraged the start-up of this model and its growing support has been advanced as a possibility for the years to come (see the appropriate box)

Measures completed outside the Turin area included support for the Brussels bureau of the Conferenza dei Rettori delle Università Italiane (CRUI), which provides a junction point and a source of information concerning initiatives within the EU. It also promotes the activities of Italian universities in other parts of Europe (see the box at the end of this section).

As explained in the part of the Report devoted to the Compagnia's permanent organisations, three of them have been engaged for some years in advanced training: Fondazione Carlo Alberto, which hosts the CORIPE masters and the University of Turin's doctorates in economics; Istituto Superiore Mario Boella, in ICT (information and communication technologies) in conjunction with the Compagnia and the Turin Polytechnic; SiTI - Istituto Superiore sui Sistemi Territoriali per l'Innovazione, in conjunction with the Turin Polytechnic.

The year 2005 also witnessed the constitution of ARFAEM - Associazione per la Ricerca e la Formazione Avanzata in Economia e Management in Naples on the part of the Compagnia, Fondazione Istituto Banco di Napoli and the "Federico II" University of Naples. This Association will be fully worked up during 2006 to support research and postgraduate training. It will also handle the Federico II's economic and finance master's degree courses. These, too, are funded by the Compagnia.

Establishment and strengthening of specialized laboratories for the Faculty of Mathematical, Physical and Natural Sciences

From the didactic point of view, the most urgent and important intervention for the Turin University concerned the Faculty of MFN Sciences, whose aim is to enable its students to acquire experience in front-runner laboratories. The latest reforms of Italy's universities require the updating of their laboratory teaching and its adaptation to the specialization and multidisciplinary objectives now imposed.

After basic innovation and upgrading of the equipment of the teaching laboratory previously installed with the support of the Ministry for the three-year degree courses, the Faculty was now concerned with the acquisition of laboratory equipment for the more innovative and profession-oriented side of the first-level degree course and for the postgraduate courses.

The Compagnia has decided to support the initiative with a contribution of 1,100,000 euros to be used over a period of three years for purchase of new scientific instruments and enhancement, in some cases, of the potential of existing equipment. Several laboratories are involved. Even so, these measures will have a transversal effect for teaching purposes since the same course will be able to use equipment in different laboratories. The measures as a whole will have the value of a system whose completion will provide students with equipment that is fully adequate and even, as in the case of the Computational Biology Laboratory, superior to the current standards.

The following facilities have been involved: lecture hall and laboratory for Plant Biology; teaching laboratory for the Biological Sciences course; the new Computational Biology laboratory; Physics, Chemistry, Natural and Geological Sciences teaching laboratories; Spectroscopy laboratory; Integrated system for the study of surface properties and catalyzed reactions; laboratory for chemical analysis applied to the environment and cultural heritage; IT lecture hall for Physics; Physics laboratory; laboratory for computational analysis of complex systems at Mathematics; lecture hall for video conferences at Mathematics; macro- and micro-analysis techniques for study of areas, the environment and geomaterials for Geological Sciences; electron microscopy laboratory for teaching at geological Sciences; electron microscopy and thermoluminescence reading equipment; laboratory for the development of new IT learning methods; photogrammetry laboratory for Informatics; advanced IT teaching laboratory.

Advanced training in economics and finance has been concentrated on the master's courses and doctorates at the Collegio Carlo Alberto. Other projects have been directed to peacekeeping, urban studies, intellectual property, cultural management, philanthropy and socially responsible entrepreneurship, industrial production, international relations and cooperation in development. Support has been mainly provided in the form of funds to be used for study grants.

Business education has been supported through the work of the Italian branch of the European School of Management in Turin, a part of the European ESCP-EAP network that is steadily growing in terms of initiatives and international appreciation.

Training policies, activities and methods

In the case of schooling, the Compagnia's commitment is to support supplementary training. This aim is primarily pursued through the promotion of areas of "learning" not sufficiently covered in conventional syllabuses. The Compagnia does not support projects advanced by individual schools. Its preference is for more far-reaching initiatives that may have a beneficial effect on a geographical area or a particular discipline.

Music teaching and popularisation of science (a topic also addressed in the Research sector) were supported through projects that employ play and experimentation as means of learning.

The Compagnia also funded teacher training courses on the subject of handicaps and juvenile distress, social and relational integration measures and the experimentation of innovative teaching projects.

"Western Bengali Universities in Turin. Prospects for collaboration between Italian and Indian universities" meeting

Turin University, head of the list in exchanges between Italian and Indian universities

In line with its commitment to strengthen the capability of Turin's university to attract talents, the Compagnia has supported a project stemming from a MIUR initiative with the aim of enhancing possible forms of cooperation between foundations and public institutions in supporting scientific and cultural cooperation between Italy and India.

In May 2005, the Turin University, Rome's "La Sapienza" University, Naples' "L'Orientale" and Venice's "Ca' Foscari" signed a memorandum of understanding with three Bengali universities: Calcutta University, Jadavpur University and Rabindra Bharati University, Calcutta.

The purpose of the agreement is to establish collaboration in the field of international training by means of information exchange, language teaching and exchanges of specialized teachers, researchers and graduates. A Specialization Centre in Calcutta is also planned to study the culture, heritage and other important features of both countries.

The main areas of common interest to be developed within the agreement are: mathematics and IT, environmental and agricultural sciences, biotechnology, diagnostics and sensoristics, restoration of artistic, archaeological and architectonic treasures, heritage, Indology, cinema, political, historical, social and economic studies.

Turin University has been chosen by the other Italian Universities to act as spokesman and engine of future development of the agreement. With the Compagnia's support in the form of an allocation of 200,000 euros, it committed itself to activate scholarships lasting 1-3 years for third level training and post-doctorates which has already boosted exchanges with Bengali universities. An attendance of around fifty Indian scholarship holders at Turin University is foreseen over the three-year period.

Chess games at school

Chess at school and "Master Moves"

From 20 May to 4 June 2006, Turin will host the 37th Chess Olympics, the greatest international team event in the chess world, which will involve 140 nations.

Since 2003, the Compagnia has supported a three-year project of the Società Scacchistica Torinese (SST), the Turin Chess Club, to introduce the game in some of the compulsory schools to enhance the cognitive and concentration abilities of young people. In 2005 the Compagnia allocated 45,000 euros for the third year of the project. The City of Turin's Education Department has included the project within the initiatives regarding Turin's schools under the title "Chess at School - In view of the 2006 Chess Olympics". The schools that took part belong to a consortium. They included the project in their training offer plan and they provided the classrooms, supervisory staff and a teacher accompanied by a chess instructor trained by the regional chess committee. Lessons were given by federal Chess Masters. The good results achieved by the first edition of Chess at School have led the Comitato Regionale Piemonte della Federazione Scacchistica Italiana (FSI), Piedmont Regional Committee of the Italian Chess-players Federation, to extend chess courses to other areas of Piedmont by setting up a series of training initiatives; the project received a contribution of 60,000 euros from the Compagnia at the beginning of 2005. The Organising Committee of the Torino 2006 Chess Olympics (of which SST and the FSI Regional Committee are also members) has drawn up an abundant cultural programme to accompany the Olympics: "Master Moves - Art and Science in Chess". Within its Research, Heritage and cultural sectors and Intersectorial projects, in 2005 the Compagnia decided on a contribution of 200,000 euros to the Organising Committee for the creation of info-telematic events, the "Black and White, in colour cinema" exhibition and the Gens una Sumus congress on ethics and the values of peace (hosted by Sermig of Turin).

Special attention was devoted to teaching embodying the use of chess as a means of improving learning and cognitive functions. In addition to the further prosecution of the project entitled "Chess at school. The compulsory schools and the 2006 Chess Olympics" promoted by the Turin Chess Club, an initiative devised by the Piedmont Regional Committee of the Italian Chess Federation (see box) enabled this kind of teaching to be tried out in Piedmontese schools.

The Compagnia reasserted its interest in distance teaching by supporting initiatives such as the Italian language and courses run by the IcoN - Italian Culture on the Net Consortium at Pisa. Its multimedia course entitled "History of NW Italian industry since 1850" was also conducted on the net and its forthcoming transformation into an on-line training and documentation centre also has the backing of the Compagnia.

CRUI's bureau in Brussels

The Italian University Rectors Conference in Brussels (CRUI)

The CRUI (Conferenza dei Rettori delle Università Italiane) has an office in Brussels which acts as both a source of information, initiatives and opportunities within the EU and as a promoter of its strategic lines in Europe. Through the diffusion of an innovative model of course evaluation, the creation of structured relationships between universities, enterprises and the international context and facilitation of student mobility, CRUI is developing lines of action to integrate the Italian university system at the European level.

The Brussels office is a spokesperson in relations with the EU agencies concerned with the governance, lines of approach and resources of the VII Framework Programme and of the future European Research Council. Thanks also to the collaboration with the Italian National Research Council (CNR), in March 2006 a common seat for the two bodies was opened in Brussels.

It is thus a useful tool for ameliorating university evaluation and self-evaluating systems and an important channel through which to open Italian universities and render them attractive. The Compagnia allocated 500,000 euros for the CRUI office in Brussels in 2005.

Interculturality has been advanced through the Compagnia's support of initiatives for the dissemination of an intercultural approach in education and the work of institutions adopting this approach (see the accompanying box). Support for the Arab-Israeli school the Hand in Hand association has been running for years provides an example of the Compagnia's concern for initiatives abroad.

Evaluation and self-assessment methods underlay the Compagnia's support for the work of Genoa's Associazione Treelle, which examines and formulates education policy proposals.

Most of the measures described above saw the involvement of Fondazione per la Scuola, the permanent organisation established by the Compagnia to work for the introduction of the autonomy of schools. The Fondazione's activities in 2005 are more fully described in the section of this Report devoted to the permanent organisations.

Schools and interculturality: integration initiatives

Interculturality is a subject of growing significance in schools as the result of current social and demographic changes. The initiatives supported by the Compagnia have thus increased from 6 in 2004 to 10 in 2005.

All the following initiatives are designed to improve the quality of life of students in a multicultural school: the "education to diversity" project created by the Associazione Oltreilponte, research on the concentration and dispersion of foreign students in Turin's schools carried out by the "Beyond Racism" Committee, continuation of the project "Cultural differences and common humanity. A pathway to dealing with disciplines in an intercultural key" by the Educational Services Division of the Municipality of Turin and the project by the Centre Européen Juif d'Information (with headquarters in Brussels) "Education citoyenne à la diversité."

In 2005, too, the Compagnia contributed grants towards the periods spent in foreign countries arranged every year for deserving and needy students by the Interculture Association.

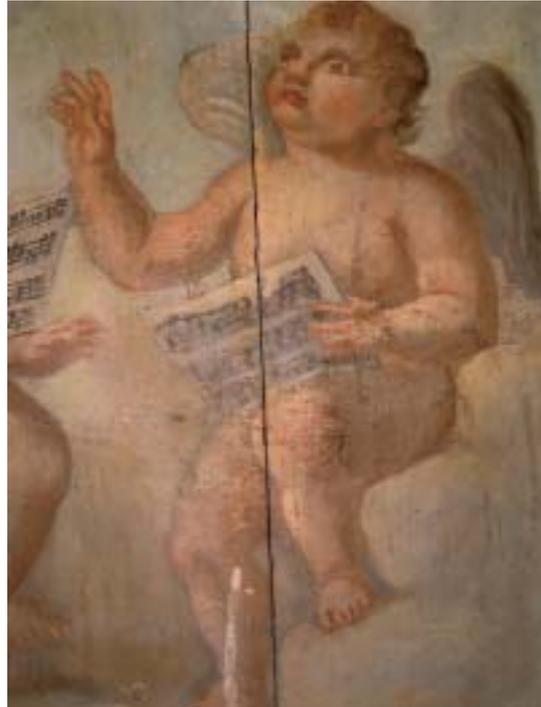

Art

Grants totalling 26 million euros, including funds assigned to the Museums Programme, were allocated to this sector during 2005 to support 124 initiatives. Use was also made of 1,839,337 euros posted to previous operating years.

The Compagnia has long upheld the importance of a nation's historical, artistic and architectonic heritage in the definition of its new ways of civil, cultural and socioeconomic development. A programme that draws the best benefit from individual monuments must combine upgrading of their context with the experimentation of new forms of collaboration between the public and the private sector. During 2005, therefore, there was a renewed desire to deal with artistic issues as matters of concern to a district and not as isolated cases of emergency, in keeping with the latest regulations. Management of cultural heritage, therefore, must maintain the competences and powers of individual subjects in logical cooperation. Adoption of an "Art System" capable of attaining the ends laid down by operating, through the permanent organisations, and by grantmaking on the part of the Compagnia has proved significant. The instrumental profile of the Fondazione per l'Arte and SiTI, in fact, imbued the Art sector with a concept of interaction that led to the trying out of new ways of cooperating and a more precise sharing out of the spheres of action most consonant to the vocations of the three organisations. Lastly, a new topic arose in the form of a commitment towards contemporary architecture in accordance with the provisions of the Ministry for Cultural Activities and Heritage. This took shape in both promotion of the quality of architectonic projects and safeguarding what is contemporary.

Interdisciplinary initiatives in conjunction with the permanent organisations

In this context, Fondazione per l'Arte was concerned with training, museum management and art collecting promotion, whereas SiTI was more concerned with the problems associated with cultural districts, urban quality and monitoring of restorations. During the year, collaboration with the Fondazione led to the definition of procedures complementary to those of the Compagnia, whereas cooperation with SiTI was further extended by its joining the Urban Center of Turin Association on behalf of the Compagnia. The aim has been to programme, assess and monitor changes in the urban space by investing resources to involve institutions and the public in the cultural reconversion Turin began some time ago. Opportunities for cooperation between the Compagnia and its two permanent organisations were not lacking, especially with respect to safeguarding the environment and natural heritage.

Bard Fortress

The Forte di Bard Association

To support initiatives centred on the value of the historical and architectonic heritage and indicative of its role in the definition of new forms of social, cultural, economic and occupational development, the Compagnia joined the Autonomous Aosta Valley Region and the CRT Foundation as a founder member of the Forte di Bard Association to promote the cultural and touristic appeal of this early-19th-century fortress set in the narrow mouth of the Aosta Valley and the scene of extensive restoration operation that have led over the course of the years to the creation of spaces for a museum, displays, promotion services and hospitality.

The Association manages this new facility, which has become the leading touristic and cultural attraction in the lower part of the Aosta Valley. It sets out to draw the best benefit from each part of the fortress through an awareness of the need for its requalification combined with due observance of its context and the trying out of new forms of management and cooperation between the public and the private sector.

The Compagnia's support illustrates its desire to address cultural heritage issues in district terms and ensure their governance through cooperation on the part of those with individual jurisdictions and powers so that what has been handed down from the past can be viewed as both an inheritance to be managed and a multiplier of resources, as well as a factor for growth.

The Compagnia's role in this regard has long been illustrated in NW Italy through its support, along with other organisations, of measures that turn architectonic emergencies to the best advantage by the establishment of places with a touristic and cultural appeal.

The local nature of its move in favour of Bard, in fact, is echoed in initiatives on behalf of other fortresses, namely Fenestrelle, Bramafam and Vinadio, recently supported in the Western Alps, mostly within the compass of a Protocol of Agreement with the Piedmont Region and its Cultural and Natural Heritage Department. Its contribution to the Association is its main commitment in the Aosta Valley and constitutes both a continuation of the restoration of the fortress and an opportunity for the commencement of a process whereby it can serve as a catalyst for a district policy for the artistic, cultural and historical enjoyment of the Valley with due observance of its special features and its worth.

Architectonic, historical, artistic and natural heritage*Civil artistic and monumental heritage*

This mainstream embraces initiatives designed to remedy works of civil architecture that reflect historical changes in the inner city and are at the same time the subject of alterations of their functions to meet the needs of contemporary society. A growing number of Piedmontese municipalities received contributions towards the restoration and reutilisation of old buildings, mostly stately homes, whose shape and history form part of the local setting. The municipal theatre at Dronero in the Province of Cuneo is a good example. The experience accrued during its restoration influenced the decision to concentrate during 2005 on edifices that had hosted shows of various kinds throughout the centuries. A call for proposals entitled "RestaurinScena" attracted the attention of Piedmontese and Ligurian cultural operators. Its results will be available in 2006.

Religious artistic and monumental heritage

A substantial part of the Compagnia's contribution was devoted to the rehabilitation of scheduled monuments both inside and outside Turin. As usual, its resources were concentrated on a few, superior quality sites so that projects which, in absence of outside support, might go on for years with a great waste of money and loss of the methodological continuity essential for the correct understanding of a monument, could be completed. Novalesa Abbey was one of these "excellent" edifices. Its restoration has been seen as the crowning touch of a commitment to the creation of a touristic and cultural sacred art itinerary in the Susa Valley and other Olympic valleys pursued since 1999. Attention was also devoted to the inner city of Genoa. As in Turin, priority was assigned to the artistic quality of places of worship and the quality of their districts. Mention must also be made of the "Cantieri d'Arte" call for proposals for Piedmont and Liguria. Its double selection arrangement resulted in the approval of 80 "excellent" restoration projects in late 2004 and early 2005. Its success and the experience thus acquired led to "Tesori Sacri", another call devoted this time to religious works of art and ornaments. A total of 127 requests for restoration had been lodged when the term for the submission of proposals expired in December.

Natural heritage

Because so many sound proposals were submitted in response to the call entitled "PaeSaggio Piemonte" it was decided to spread this over a period of two years so as to embrace more projects for improvement of the quality of the environment. In agreement with the Piedmont Region, therefore, the Compagnia commissioned Giuseppe Penone to restyle a part of the original gardens of the Reggia di Venaria Reale (Royal Palace at Venaria) beside Turin. An operation whereby the Palace itself can be duly linked to its surroundings, and conventional techniques can be wedded to contemporary artistic approaches without impairing the complexity stemming from the course of history (see the box below).

Artistic activities*Exhibitions, events and publications*

In addition to its membership fee due for the Fondazione Torino Musei and its institutional support of organisations engaged in the promotion of cultural events in Piedmont, the Compagnia concentrated on a few selected events of national interest and endowed with a strong tourist appeal. Contemporary art and juvenile creativity were stressed during operations designed to give an impression of Turin as a dynamic, international centre of the visual arts. In the case of Genoa, Rome and Naples, on the other hand, support was provided for exhibitions popularising the knowledge of the artistic Heritage and those in which the collections of their museums, especially the Capodimonte in Naples, were displayed to the best advantage.

Chiesa Confraternita della S.S. Annunziata di Guarane - painted dome

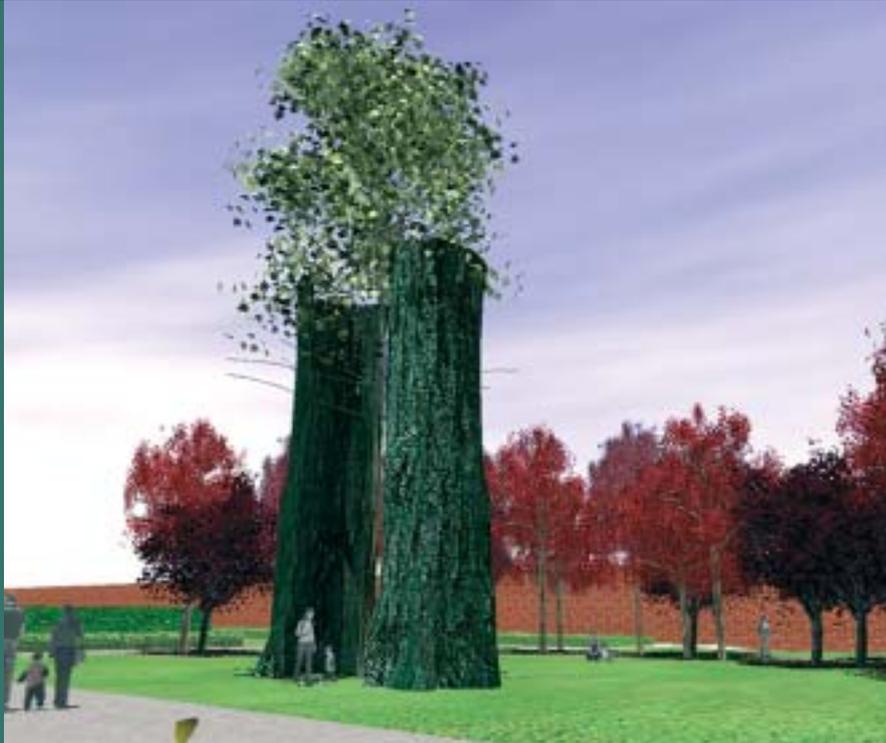

Guarene, the Chiesa Confraternita della S.S. Annunziata

This Baroque church is located in the inner part of the town of Guarane in the Province of Cuneo and its great architectonic dignity is combined with the exceptional worth of its ornaments. The centre of the fresco on the dome, for example, provides a trompe l'oeil lantern, and the same effect is produced throughout the interior by dry representations of architecture, marble reliefs and paintings.

Works of sacred art have a prominent place in the Compagnia's programme guidelines for the cultural heritage.

Increases in the call for its services over the course of the years, however, have led since 2002 to the differentiation of three mainstreams: support for the complete restoration of edifices in the inner city of Turin; operations to protect and promote the full enjoyment of minor works in Piedmont through Tesori Sacri, a call for proposals relating to works of art and church ornaments, and Cantieri d'Arte, relating to the architectonic heritage; requalification of provincial monuments on which the attention of a plurality of subjects is concentrated. The Guarane restoration lies within the third mainstream. Its aim is to conclude the work of restoration begun more than ten years ago and so return this example of Piedmontese Baroque to both scholars and the local inhabitants, and provide tourists with an illustration of the Region's identity and traditions.

Giuseppe Penone: contemporary sculpture

The gardens at Venaria Reale

As part of the programme for the restoration and promotion of the true worth of the Savoyard Residences, in this case the Royal Palace at Venaria and the Castello della Mandria precinct, the Compagnia has commissioned Giuseppe Penone to restyle the part of the Palace gardens known as the Lower Park between the wall erected by Castellamonte and the Peschiera. Investigations conducted by experts appointed by the Historical Monuments Commission have shown that the destruction wreaked on the Park over the course of the centuries forbids any attempt to revive its original layout and appearance. Its restyling by a well-known contemporary artist is thus viewed as a stimulating possibility and a further promotion of the worth of the Palace. Penone blends art with nature and reinterprets them through his poetic, innovative sculptures and with due respect for the surroundings. His project is without precedent in Europe: ten combinations of trees, hedges and trunks with works of art in bronze and marble along a 300-metre route whose harmony and lively rhythm enable the visitor to discover the beauties of nature and art and appreciate the fascinating dialogue between the past and the present. This project is encompassed in the 2004 Protocol signed by the Compagnia, the Piedmont Region and its Cultural and Natural Heritage Department in furtherance of the Outline Programme for cultural heritage signed by the Ministry for Cultural Activities and Heritage and the Piedmont Region in 2001.

The "A tribute to Velázquez" exhibition in Naples

Naples. A tribute to Velázquez

In addition to measures such as the restoration and requalification of the Grotta di Virgilio, the urban axis of Santa Caterina and Piazza Bellini, the Compagnia's efforts to promote the artistic and cultural worth of Italy's Midi also extend to the support of exhibitions with a high artistic value and singular excellence and quality. A substantial contribution was thus made to the "Tribute to Velázquez" exhibition staged in 2005 at the Museo Nazionale di Capodimonte, Naples. This carefully arranged, scientifically valid and certainly fascinating exhibition provided a fuller understanding of Velázquez's art and its links with that of 17th-century Italy. It also served to illustrate the value of the Museum's own collections and substantiate the image of the Capodimonte Palace as a venue for the staging of major exhibitions to enrich the international cultural vitality of the city of Naples.

The Risorgimento Museum, Genoa

Genoa: the Risorgimento Museum

On the occasion of the celebrations for the bicentenary of the birth of Giuseppe Mazzini, the Compagnia contributed towards the project for the restoration and revamping of the Museo del Risorgimento promoted by the Municipality of Genoa.

This museum forms part of the Istituto Mazziniano, which comprises the archives and library installed since 1934 in the house where Mazzini was born, a 15th-century palazzo in the inner city and the home of the memorabilia called the Sacrario mazziniano since 1875.

The Compagnia's grant was used to set up exhibition facilities more in keeping with modern museum requirements, the type of edifice and illustration of the rooms devoted to Mazzini. Refunctionalisation of the Museum was devised to extend its access and enjoyment by the public.

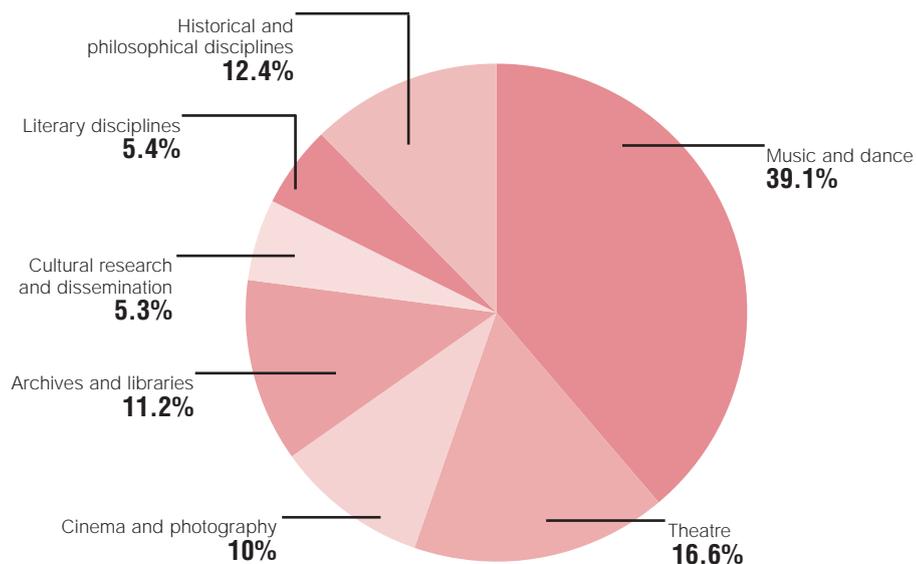

This initiative corroborated the Compagnia's commitment to underscore the image of Genoa as a place of culture in furtherance of the experience acquired in 2004 when it was designated a "Capitale Europea della Cultura".

Culture

Grants totalling Euro 15 million were allocated to this sector during 2005 to support 220 initiatives. Use was also made of Euro 113,468 posted to previous operating years.

The first year of the Compagnia's four-year schedule gave its Culture sector the opportunity to look over its work during the preceding period and at the same time strike a balance between the need to prevent wastage of funds and the many calls for assistance received from a troubled social and economic scenario plagued by both a cutback of government spending on culture and the shrinkage in the private demand for culture already apparent in 2004. To face the danger of a decision to do without culture or drastically reduce its quality, it was again resolved to place the safeguarding of the thickness and complexity of culture at the centre of every measure adopted by the Compagnia by means of a strict selection coordinated according to the priorities of the sector's three operating areas.

Cultural activities

The substantial increase in the funds earmarked for this thematic area is mainly attributable to the three-year allocation to the Fondazione Teatro Regio di Torino, together with the other two bodies in which the Compagnia participates, namely Fondazione Teatro Stabile di Torino and Fondazione Museo Nazionale del Cinema, which received 4,345,000 euros (44% of the funds for this area and 30% of those for the Sector as a whole). There was also a 20% increase in the amount assigned to the "In Compagnia della Musica" and "In Compagnia del Teatro" calls for proposals from Piedmont, the Aosta Valley and Liguria. These are now firm reference points in the Compagnia's province for cultural organisations bodies seeking to come to the fore through the artistic quality and management capabilities from which their proposals are derived.

Music and dance

"In Compagnia della Musica" resulted in the selection of 40 Festivals and 19 seasons. The amount allotted - 1,872,000 euros - was 10.2% greater than in 2004. In addition the Compagnia continued to support higher musical education at the national level coupled with its commitment towards selected bodies in the wider area. Naples received contributions for the Fondazione Teatro di San Carlo, the Associazione Alessandro Scarlatti and the Centro di Musica Antica Pietà de' Turchini. Mention may also be made of the grant for the opera season of the Fondazione Teatro Carlo Felice of Genoa. With regard to dance, the Compagnia's contributions were concentrated on Piedmont's major festivals, where international artists are joined by local medium-sized and small companies.

Theatre

The central role of the "In Compagnia del Teatro" call for proposals was once again evident. A total of 41 initiatives (Festivals and seasons) were selected for the three parts of NW Italy, for which 1,380,000 euros were allocated. Liguria's traditional association with the theatre was significantly apparent in its proposals of choice seasons flanked by the activities of the Teatro Stabile of Genoa, which received a substantial contribution as a recognised national benchmark. A grant was also approved for the Associazione Teatro Stabile di Napoli recently established by the local institutions. Turin's Teatro Stabile went ahead with its conversion into a public permanent theatre whose aim is to promote culture and act as an engine for change through multiplication and diversification of its presentations and an adequate spaces policy.

Cinema and photography

The Compagnia's relationship with the Fondazione Museo Nazionale del Cinema proceeded with support for both its institutional activities and specific projects, such as the acquisition of the Frontoni Photograph Collection and organisation of the XXIIIth Turin Film Festival.

Support was provided for presentations whose subjects and compass merited their inclusion on the calendar of international cinematographic festivals. These were "Artecinema", "Sottodiciotto", "Cinemambiente", "Cervino International Film Festival" and "Festival Internazionale Cinema delle Donne". Salvage, conservation and utilisation of old films as evidence of the past and as an art form continued with the digitalisation of photo and film collections and the holding of thematic exhibitions, such as the XIth International Photography Biennial: "Il fotogiornalismo in Italia 1945-2005".

Cultural services

Archives and libraries

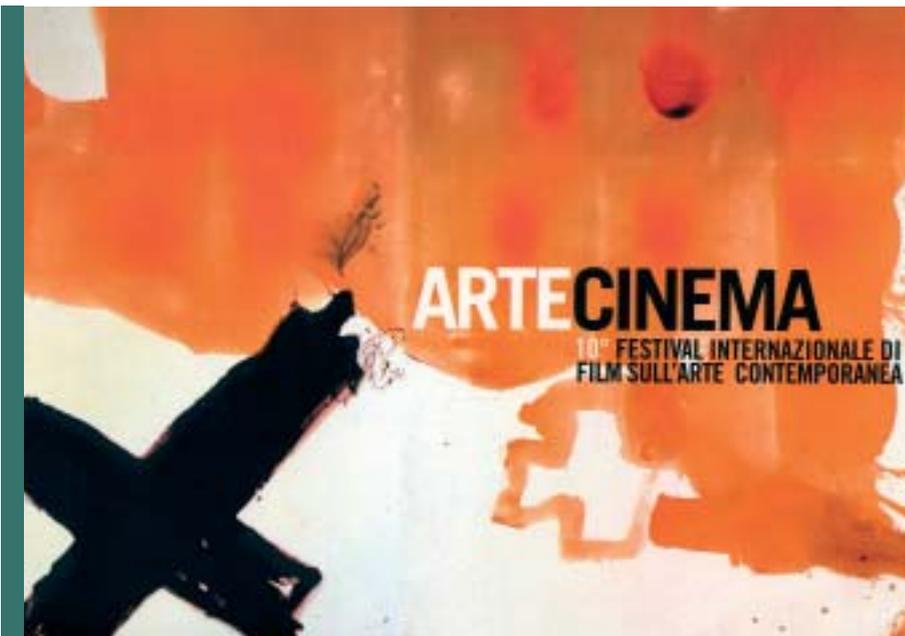

The main feature under this heading was the three-year project for the Newspaper Information Digital Library in connection with the promotion of the Documentation Centre of Turin's La Stampa newspaper. Particular attention was devoted to the preservation and inventorying of the UTET -

Great Dictionary of the Italian Language project commenced by the Turin State Archives to make the best use of this major enterprise. The single project for the restoration and photoreproduction workshops was also terminated in conjunction with the Archives. Support was accorded to projects relating to the "La Lanterna Magica" and "Living Theatre" film collections.

As in the past, initiatives for the safeguarding of records were promoted. These were in favour of the Istituto Italiano per gli Studi Storici in Naples, the "Giustino Fortunato" Library, the Municipality of Sant'Antonino di Susa and the Fondazione Sandro Penna.

Cultural research and dissemination

Two lines were followed in this mainstream. The first was national and comprised projects for the optimisation of cultural activities and productions, including the "New museum languages" project conducted by the Centro Studi Holden and the Associazione Rive Gauche Concerti for the identification of new ways of communicating with visitors to museums, and the research entitled "Planning quality in the valorisation of cultural resources" conducted by CIDAC. The second line was international. Its central feature was the relationship with LAB - Laboratorio Europeo sulla Cooperazione Culturale and the birth of the "A soul for Europe" project promoted by Berlin's Forum Zukunft Berlin to make culture a common platform for the EU.

Artecinema 2005 - Festival Internazionale di Film sull'Arte Contemporanea

The 10th Artecinema 2005 - Festival Internazionale di Film sull'Arte Contemporanea was held at the Teatro Augusteo, Naples, in October 2005. It was arranged by the Trisorio Cultural Association, which has been supported by the Compagnia for several years. Initiated for the purpose of publicising contemporary art through documentaries on leading artists, architects and photographers from the last fifty years, the Festival offers a synopsis of contemporary art and its works through interviews and filmed biographies and narrations prepared from archive materials. Last year's programme included films on Antoni Tàpies, Henry Moore and Edward Hopper, on Helmut Newton and Joan Fontcuberta, and on Antti Lovag and Toyo Ito. Admission free and sui generis, the Festival has gained the increasing approval of the public and the critics over the course of the years, and is now one of the most eagerly awaited events on the calendar of art and cinema enthusiasts.

Company,
New York 1970

The "Living Theatre" Archive

Founded in New York by Judith Malina and Julian Beck in 1947, and active in Italy since 1961, the "Living Theatre" company has always been imbued with a civil commitment and has helped to redefine theatre's customary forms. It has performed in hundreds of towns and cities, both in ordinary theatres and in schools and hospitals, on building sites and in the streets, and has thus acquainted the Italian public with works that have changed the face of modern theatre: "The Connection", "Mysteries and smaller pieces", "Non in mio nome", "Paradise Now". The constitution in 2000 of the "Centro Living Europa" at Rocchetta Ligure has wedded theatre to its surroundings and spurred the collection of masses of information and documents relating to the group's activities. In October 2005, its European Archive composed of letters, photos, scripts, posters, videos, films etc. was presented to the Associazione Culturale

Orsa, which has its own archive of documents relating to 20th-century and avant-garde theatre. The outcome has been the formation of a "Living Theatre" archive. This will be duly restored and catalogued prior to being made available to scholars, students and organisations, and promoted through a series of initiatives. During the period 2005-2006, in fact, arrangement and inventorying of the paper and audiovisual materials will be accompanied by performances and workshops presented by the Living and other companies, an international meeting and projections selected from the archives, in conjunction with the Training Sciences Faculty of the University of Turin, the Piedmont Region, and the National Cinema Library of Rome's Experimental Cinematography Centre, with which it has been agreed that the originals will eventually be filed in the Archivio Nazionale del Cinema d'Impresa at Ivrea.

A section of the interactive exhibition "Turin 1938-1948"

The "Torino 1938-1948: from the race laws to the Constitution" exhibition

In the interim prior to the assignment of its management to an organisation to be designated in Turin, the "Museo Diffuso della Resistenza, della Deportazione, della Guerra, dei Diritti e delle Libertà" is being run by the Istituto Piemontese per la Storia della Resistenza e della Società Contemporanea "Giorgio Agosti", which is located in the Palazzo dei Quartieri Militari where the Museum itself is housed. At the beginning of 2005, the Istituto embarked on the first part of its multimedial path through the Museum entitled "Torino 1938-1948". The complete layout of the permanent exhibition was inaugurated in February 2006, following the receipt of a grant of 200,000 euros from the Compagnia. In the Museum's underground rooms, sounds, lights and pictures are used to carry the visitor along a journey through Turin during the second world war and the first three post-bellum years. Five lines of a virtual "subway" are devoted to particular features of those dramatic times. At the terminal of each line, the subjects it has presented are illustrated through the use of portraits, interviews, film strips and other memorabilia along a path that leads to a "table library", where parts of the city are represented as they once were and the touch of a hand reveals papers, photos and old recordings. Daily life during the war, air-raids, occupation, the troubled days of the liberation and the enactment of the Constitution as the goal of such a stony road towards democracy and the reassertion of human rights are illustrated in this way. Each step along the visit carries an invitation to better understand and think over the events of the war and its sequel. Deep involvement of the visitor is aroused by the layout of the Museum with its clear indications and the wealth of information gathered by the Istituto over the course of so many years of research and investigation.

Humanistic disciplines

Literary disciplines

Promotion of books and reading, especially on the part of the young, was pursued through both the Compagnia's continued leadership as the main private supporter of the International Book Fair, and its renewed collaboration with the Piedmont Region in the project "Born to read" designed to promote a desire to read from the first months of life. These two initiatives were accompanied by the Compagnia's support of the second Forum Nazionale del Libro and the Progetto Ludori, and its contribution to the Festa dei Lettori, a forerunner of the events arranged for 2006-2007 on the occasion of Turin World Book Capital. National and international study and further education grants were awarded (C.R.I.S.I.S., Fondazione Bogliasco, Collège de France). Prizes were awarded for first works (Premio Calvino) and support was provided for courses devoted to the latest narration techniques (Centro Studi Holden).

Historical and philosophical disciplines

There was an increase in historical and philosophical research and popularisation initiatives with Piedmont and its archives as the main fields of investigation. Particular attention was paid to the contexts of contemporaneity with reference to both popularisation and reflection, as in the first FestivalStoria devoted to migrations and diasporas, or the start of the Museo Narrante dell'Emigrazione near Cosenza. An increase of interest in philosophy and encouragement of conceptual thinking spurred the reissue of "Torino Spiritualità". Several prestigious exhibitions were held, some temporary, such as the project entitled "Vassily Grossman (1905-2005): Stalingrad, ideology, freedom", and others devoted to the enrichment of permanent galleries, such as the restyling of the Museo Nazionale della Montagna, the "Torino 1938-1948" museum cycle arranged by the Istituto Piemontese per la Storia della Resistenza e della Società Contemporanea, and the exhibitions at the Turin State Archives and the Genoa State Archives devoted to Savoyard maps of the Piedmontese Alps, and to the relationship between Giuseppe Mazzini and his home town respectively.

Restyling of the collections of the Museo Nazionale della Montagna

Recent restoration work lasting 26 months has enhanced the position of the "Duca degli Abruzzi" Museo Nazionale della Montagna as the omphalos for the study, documentation and promotion of the mountains.

The word "museum" conjures up a picture of a closed place crammed with memorabilia to be preserved and passed on to posterity. At the Mountain Museum this concept has been turned on its head to create an open place with a crosstalk between the past and the present. The main feature of the renewal is verticalisation thanks to a new lift. Upward opening has also been achieved through the construction of a panoramic terrace beside the former Vedetta Alpina. The terrace provides a view of Turin and the Alps that stretches for more than 400 km, while its glazing conveys light to the rooms below. One passes from the Exhibition Area with its permanent and temporary displays to the Meetings Area, which hosts events linked to the mountains, and the Documentation Area with the Italian Alpine Club's National Library and the Museum's own documents. Suggestion and scientific and historical precision are the keynotes of the furnishing of the exhibition areas. A visit is spectacular and arouses emotion and renewed interest in the environment. The video stations are enlivened with recordings by Giuseppe Cederna, actor and alpinist, and sequences from the Museum's historical film library. Several themes have been adopted for the presentation of the collections. The key subjects associated with the mountains, their legends, history and present situation are combined with sections devoted to eight significant summits visible from the Museum's perch on the Monte dei Cappuccini. "From mystery to civilization" tells the story of Sacra di San Michele Abbey as a symbol of the religiousness that permeated the whole of the Alps during the Middle Ages; "Communications" refers to Moncenisio, a demonstration of the fact that mountains do not prevent a communion between the peoples on their two sides; "Summer tourism and alpinism", an account of Rocciamelone with a reminder that when Rotario d'Asti walked up this tall peak in 1358 he became the first alpinist; "Club Alpino Italiano, devoted to Monviso, the ascent of Quintino Sella, and the start of the proselytism of the mountains and high-altitude science; "Winter alpinism", Uja di Mondrone, the mountain on which winter climbing began; "Ski and winter sport", the Susa Valley where skiing cut its teeth in Italy and now the true host of the Winter Olympic Games; "Extracountry mountain", Monte Rosa, the Alpine massif that most closely recalls the Himalayas and thus most aptly serves to introduce the stories of the courageous climbers who went out to tackle the world's other mountain ranges; "Sustainable development", the Gran Paradiso, whose name is also that of Italy's first national park. Digitalisation of the Documentation Centre's many files of photos was supported by the Compagnia in previous years. Its commitment to the Museum has now been convincingly fulfilled by its readiness to contribute towards this restyling of the collections in the new Museum that has arisen from its particularly competent and innovative management, and is all set to stir the emotions of its visitors with displays of pieces carefully selected from its stock of more than 130,000 items.

Grants breakdown per field of interest

Zenica Hospital, Bosnia, where the Compagnia has supported the establishment of an oncological unit within the compass of an initiative promoted by the Piedmont Region's Health Department

During the course of 2005, allocations totalling 15 million euros were approved for the support of 42 initiatives in the Health sector, and a further 79,034 euros were drawn from funds established in previous operating years. The Compagnia's activities were concentrated on three topics; technological and organisational innovation, specialised areas, and diseases with a significant social impact.

Technological and organisational innovation

The Compagnia renewed its support for modernisation of the research, diagnosis and treatment equipment of health facilities, development of telemedicine networks, improvement of care and reduction of its costs, and the introduction of innovative management models in hospitals and their operating network.

Modernisation of equipment was preferentially directed to the acquisition of innovative instruments, coupled with the avoidance of duplication and underutilisation and careful evaluation of management and system costs. Some of these measures assisted the health services associated with the Olympics and Paralympics (see the box devoted to the Paralympics). This was true of the grants made to increase the potential of the apparatus of the CTO/CRF/Maria Adelaide Hospital's neuroradiology and neurosurgery units, and the acquisition of a digital MRI apparatus for the Radiodiagnosics 7 section of Turin's San Giovanni Battista Hospital.

In the telemedicine mainstream, the Compagnia supported a project prepared by Pinerolo's Health District (ASL10) for the electronic processing and storage of radiological images, including the findings and digital signatures, integration and distribution between hospitals. This project was also devised with Turin 2006 in mind. A measure of the same kind was the establishment for Local Health District (ASL14) (Omegna) of a network system linking the cardiological emergency units of the hospitals of Verbania, Domodossola and Omegna.

The development of innovative management models was promoted for Turin's San Giovanni Battista Hospital in a project for the reorganisation and adaptation of its diagnostic and therapeutic digestive endoscopy operations. Support was also provided for the setting up of an innovative model for integrated management of the diagnosis and treatment of coronary and extracoronary vasculopathies at Local Health Service 4 (San Giovanni Bosco Hospital, Turin). Funding by the Compagnia in favour of the Unione Genitori Italiani contro il Tumore dei Bambini secured the prosecution of the work of establishing a residence building for patients admitted to Turin's Regina Margherita Children's Hospital and their parents (see the box devoted to this project).

Specialised areas

The Compagnia has for several years assigned priority to neuroscience, transplants, and urgency and emergency medicine in view of the social significance of the disorders involved and the quality of the skills present in its operating areas and their growth potential.

In the case of neuroscience, consideration has been given to initiatives proposed by centres and institutes in Turin directed to enhancement of their operating conditions in view of the launching of a new long-term programme inspired by the logic and methods perfected in the Compagnia's Oncology Programme. This subject is explained in greater detail in the section entitled "The road to the neuroscience programme". Mention may none the less be made of the funding of the "optimisation of neurological neonatal diagnosis and the efficiency of primary resuscitation of the crucial neonate" project formulated by the Paediatric and Adolescent Sciences Department of the University of Turin. A project for IT processing of the clinical records of the Liver Trasplantation Centre at the San Giovanni Battista Hospital and a prospective study of kidney transplantation at the Nephrology, Dialysis and Transplant section of the Regina Margherita Children's Hospital were also supported by the Compagnia.

Urgency and emergency medicine came to the fore in connection with the holding of the Winter Olympic Games and the Winter Paralympics in Turin in 2006. The "Eredità Paralimpiadi" project set out to enhance the medical equipment and apparatus of the Regional public health service units involved in the two events. Support was also provided for the technological and organisational adaptation of the emergency facilities at Turin's CTO (Centro Traumatologico Ortopedico) Hospital in view of its front-line importance during the Games (see the box devoted to the Paralympics).

Diseases with a high social impact

Attention was again directed to diseases that are the main cause of mortality and morbidity and initiatives concerned with their primary and secondary prevention.

In the case of cardiocirculatory diseases and tumours, preference was accorded to measures in support of basic and clinical research, both associated with the life sciences mainstream of the Scientific research sector. Support was provided for the 2005 European Educational Programme in Epidemiology (EEPE Association, Florence), and the "Stratification of the sudden death risk in patients with hypertrophic heart disease" project of Collegno's Local Health District (ASL5), near Turin.

The Compagnia also concentrated on diseases that primarily affect growing children and the elderly, especially diabetes. Grants were made in favour of the Istituto di Ricerche Farmacologiche Mario

Lighting of the paralympic brazier during the opening ceremony

The Turin 2006 Paralympiad

The success of the XXth Winter Olympic Games was followed by that of the IXth Winter Paralympic Games held in Turin and the Alps from 10 to 19 March 2006.

The Paralympics attracted 40 nations and about 1300 competitors, technical staff and guides, more than on previous occasions. The Compagnia's contributions in 2005 were directed to the Health sector and medical care. A total of 2.3 million euros were allocated for the acquisition of medical equipment and apparatus to be used during the Games and then handed over to the public health service units involved in the event.

A further provision of 600,000 euros was allocated to the "Accessible Transport" project set up to provide a mountain transport service for the disabled in appropriately adapted vehicles that will subsequently be assigned to already identified Mountain Communities and other regional organisations concerned with the welfare of the disabled.

The Compagnia also supported initiatives in favour of hospitals included in the network of medical and urgency-emergency services set up for the two sets of Games. Two grants totalling 3.8 million euros assigned to the CTO/CRF/Maria Adelaide Hospital were devoted to technological adaptation and improvements in diagnosis and treatment to enable the CTO (Centro Traumatologico Ortopedico) to cater for numerous disorders. Support in the form of 1 million euros was also provided a project prepared by Local Health District 10 at Pinerolo, another Olympic venue, for the electronic processing, storage and transmission of radiological images.

Further confirmation of the Compagnia's concern for the Paralympics was provided in January 2006 when its General Council approved the setting aside of 10 million euros to "consolidate and perpetuate the understanding, awareness and practice of sport as a source of fulfilment for the disabled through the creation of facilities after the Olympics".

A fuller account of the contribution of the Compagnia's sectors towards the enhancement of the potential of Turin and Piedmont, both during the city's candidature and in the run-up to the two Games, can be found in the section entitled "The Compagnia's contribution towards TURIN 2006".

Negri in Milan for a project entitled "Development and experimentation of the bioartificial pancreas through the transplantation of islet cells and by means of immunoprotection devices", and the "Diabetes, a local social problem" initiative of the Associazione SOS Diabetes, a non-profit organisation at Asti. For the benefit of children the Compagnia supported the implementation of a project entitled "Food allergy and anaphylaxis at school" prepared by the Sant'Anna Hospital, Turin. Health cooperation on behalf of the developing countries was furthered during 2005 by the Compagnia's support for projects and bodies primarily concerned with diseases afflicting entire communities, such as malaria and tuberculosis, and primarily initiatives forming part of the international programmes of organisations present in Italy and Turin in particular. Examples include the formation of an oncological unit at the Zenica Hospital in Bosnia promoted by the Piedmont Region's Health Department, and the setting up of an area medical service in the south of Sudan by the Comitato Collaborazione Medica, Turin (see the relative box). Mention may also be made of the support provided by the Compagnia for a project for training Italian and foreign health workers in the field of tropical diseases prepared by Ivo de Carneri Foundation, a non-profit organisation in Milan.

Communal residence building for patients admitted to Turin's Regina Margherita Children's Hospital and their families

Communal residence building for patients admitted to Turin's Regina Margherita Children's Hospital and their families - Unione Genitori Italiani contro il Tumore dei Bambini (UGI)

During the period 2003-05, the Compagnia approved a total grant of 2,660,000 euros towards the revamping of a building to provide accommodation for children admitted to the Paediatric Oncology and Haematology Departments and the Bone Marrow Transplant Centre of Turin's Regina Margherita Children's Hospital and their families. These "Highly specialised regional and national centres" receive patients and their families from the whole of Italy (about 80% of the children admitted do not reside in Turin, nor its province).

The building chosen for this purpose is situated in Corso Unità d'Italia, a stone's throw away from the hospital. It belongs to the Municipality of Turin and began life as the North station of a short monorail line erected on the occasion of the Unity of Italy celebrations in 1961. The UGI has been granted free occupancy for a period of twenty years. The intention is to consolidate its cantilever roof, which has some architectonic merit, and demolish the rest. Its place will be taken by an edifice called "Stazione Regina" composed of two storeys, each with a covered surface of about 470 m², occupying a total area of about 1800 m². Its installations and finishes will be made as "homely" as possible. It is expected to be fully operational by the end of 2006.

The Liver Transplantation Centre

Project for the reorganisation and adaptation of the diagnostic and therapeutic digestive endoscopy operations of the San Giovanni Battista Hospital, Turin

This hospital's digestive endoscopy service is engaged in the diagnosis and treatment of GI disorders and receives patients from both Piedmont and the rest of Italy.

It is the country's leading centre in terms of the number of operations per year and is regarded as one of the most advanced in the application of new technologies for the endoscopic diagnosis and treatment of digestive diseases and some other disorders. Its skills and technological resources are used to deal with all sectors: diagnostic endoscopy, echoendoscopy, surgical endoscopy for the treatment of early tumours, and biliopancreatic and experimental endoscopy.

The Compagnia has contributed 1.3 million euros towards a programme for rationalisation and integration of the service's professional skills, outpatient facilities and technological resources (currently assigned to four distinct units) in order to rearrange its activities and step up its capabilities. Substantial strengthening of advanced therapeutic endoscopy for the diagnosis and treatment of early GI tumours and biliopancreatic disorders is envisaged. Implementation of the project will serve to increase the number of patients who can be cured by advanced endoscopic methods as opposed to complicated surgical operations.

The Medchild site

Fondazione Istituto Mediterraneo per l'Infanzia - MedChild (Genoa)

This Foundation was established by the Fondazione Gerolamo Gaslini in 2003. It deals with education and health issues relating to children and adolescents living in the Mediterranean countries. In 2005, the Compagnia assigned it two grants totalling 444,000 euros for its "MedChild Hospital Ship" and "Charting the Mediterranean Child 2005" projects.

The first grant was allocated to support a feasibility study of the outfitting of a paediatric medicine ship. This study is being conducted with the logistic support of the Italian Navy and the help of physicians from the Gaslini Institute in Genoa. Its two parallel phases are concerned with the carrying out of missions in the Mediterranean to determine what would be needed in the way of diagnostic, clinical, surgical and teletransmission instruments, and with the definition of a project to determine the technical specifications of a hospital ship. The other grant was allocated to support the completion of the second "Charting the Mediterranean Child" report, which provides a qualitative and quantitative picture of the state of health of children in the Mediterranean area.

The Bunagok medical service in Sudan

Comitato Collaborazione Medica - CCM (Turin)

CCM is an international cooperation NGO whose aim is to improve the state of health of people living in the developing countries by ensuring an adequate level of treatment, intervening in cases of emergency and helping local health services. The Compagnia's grant of 170,000 euros for 2005 was directed to the creation of an area medical service at Bunagok in the south of Sudan.

The area concerned - Awerial County - is scarred by civil war and has about 170,000 inhabitants. There are no organisations providing social services, treatment for complicated cases, nor vaccination and preventive medicine measures. CCM will set up a first-level medicine service and mobile units to treat diseases such as malaria and respiratory and ocular disorders, as well as the provision of mass vaccination and treatment to deal with intestinal parasites, AIDS and tuberculosis.

Assistance to socially deprived categories

Grants totalling 28 million euros were allocated to this sector during 2005 to support 186 initiatives. Use was also made of 5,248,339 euros posted to previous operating years.

Grants breakdown per field of interest

Three main objectives marked the Compagnia's commitment towards social policies in 2005: consolidation and conferment of continuity on projects with a high degree of complexity due to the many players involved and the type of measures required, in which the Compagnia, in addition to being the funding body, is proactively engaged in promotion, coordination and evaluation; stabilisation and strengthening, through specific initiatives, cooperation with public bodies and service organisations as integral parts of the social protection network in the areas where the Compagnia operates; direction of the maximum attention to situations of social vulnerability and prevention or reduction of the risk of poverty and marginalisation for a growing number of persons obliged to alter their lifestyle.

For these reasons, priority was ascribed to three areas: promotion of home assistance, support to the age of development and pathways to social independence .

Home assistance

Home help and care in the form of improvement/maintenance of the quality of life of persons who are no longer self-reliant or whose movements are restricted, and assistance of families directly responsible for looking after one of their members, was once again among the Compagnia's priorities owing to an awareness that the home is the source of stability and serenity, especially in times of illness. Several measures of various kinds were implemented. Prime importance continued to be attached to the home help and care services for patients with tumours and other serious disorders provided by third-sector organisations in Piedmont and other Italian Regions. The Compagnia also renewed its support of the ADPO (Assistenza Domiciliare Post Ospedaliera) network project, which ensures a sheltered convalescence for elderly patients

Home care for oncological patients in Piedmont

The Compagnia has long assigned priority to home help and care as an effective and appropriate way of improving and maintaining the quality of life of persons who are no longer self-reliant or whose movements are restricted, and assisting families who are looking after one of their members. Beneficiaries comprise the elderly, advanced-stage oncological patients, persons with other serious disorders and the disabled.

The Compagnia supports the work of organisations that provide free, continuous and comprehensive home assistance in Piedmont for terminal cancer patients, who can thus remain in their homes and receive palliative treatments just as if they were in hospital. These services are rendered by teams composed of oncologists, professional nurses, and volunteers aided by physiotherapists and psychologists.

The three main organisations thus supported are: Fondazione F.A.R.O. (Assistenza Ricerca Oncologica) Piemonte, a Turinese non-profit group that serves patients resident in Turin and most of its Province, and has since 2001 run the San Vito Oncological Hospice, a small facility with a family atmosphere that relies on interpersonal relationships and containment of health interventions; Associazione A.D.A.S. (Assistenza Domiciliare ai Sofferenti), a Cuneo non-profit group whose catchment basin is Cuneo and most of its Province; Associazione Luce per la Vita, a Turin non-profit organisation serving patients in Val Sangone and the Susa Valley.

The Compagnia's grants for home help and care in 2005 totalled 500,000 euros.

discharged from Turin's hospitals. Other measures included the establishment of structures for the temporary reception of adults and children undergoing hospital treatment and their accompanying persons, and the creation of day centres for the socially underprivileged to relieve their relatives from the burden of daily life in contact with distress. Support was also provided for "After us" initiatives aimed at the formation of flexible structures in which disabled persons can enjoy continuous, valid hospitality after the death of their parents. Close attention was also directed to projects for the benefit of elderly persons with Alzheimer's disease, senile dementia and Parkinson's disease.

The Vita Tre Association Day Centre at Saluggia, Province of Vercelli

"Days of life to avoid the Rest Home" project at Saluggia

The Vita Tre Voluntary Workers Association at Saluggia in the Province of Vercelli has long been engaged in bringing elderly persons together and providing them with services enabling them to remain in their own homes with the assistance of senior citizen human and professional resources. The services offered include transport, maintenance, meals on wheels, gymnastic courses, a Day Centre, workshops, tele-aid, booking and collecting the results of examinations, cultural activities and "care of the elderly" courses.

To enhance the quality of its services, the Association has enlarged its Day Centre in "Casa Sereno", a group of three 18th-century buildings also occupied by guest rooms, the Museo della Tradizione, a room for volunteer associations, a library, a documentation centre, an office and archives.

The Compagnia made a grant of 75,000 euros towards the upgrading of the Day Centre during 2005.

Support to the age of development

This mainstream is essentially focussed on support for the educational role of the family and initiatives in favour of children and young persons as a way of preventing situations of distress and offsetting the reproduction of inequality from one generation to the next.

The most substantial initiative in this field during 2005 was the call for proposals for the construction of crèches in Piedmont. Preparation and support for parenthood and promotion of exchange and solidarity networks between families formed the subject of other funded initiatives. Support was provided for the establishment of hospitality centres for women living alone with

The project submitted by the Municipality of Druento, Province of Turin, in response to the "Crèches in Piedmont" call for proposal

The "Crèches in Piedmont" call for proposals

Despite its very low birth rate, the Piedmont Region still suffers from a dearth of services for babies and young children. Support for families is thus a matter of growing importance. In recent years, the Compagnia has devoted a substantial portion of its resources to improving the quantity and quality of the services provided for families, especially those with children up to 3 years old. This has included participation in a project for the setting up of family microcrèches. The greatest shortage of services, in fact, both in Piedmont and Italy as a whole, is at the lowest end of age bracket. Public and private crèches together have places for only 15% of the Region's children aged 0-3 years. The range is from 22% in the Province of Biella to only 9% in the Province of Cuneo.

In spring 2005, therefore, the Compagnia called for proposals for the establishment of crèches with a capacity of 35 to 60 places each. This invitation was directed to the Region's municipalities and Mountain Communities. Grants were to cover 60% of the establishment costs, plus 3500 euros per place for the first three years' management expenses. Examination of the proposals on the part of a committee appointed by the Compagnia and composed of experts skilled in architectonic, environmental, educational and management matters resulted in the selection of those submitted by the Municipalities of Poirino, Moncalieri, Druento, Nichelino, Leini, Vigone and Casale Monferrato.

All the chosen projects prescribed the use of biocompatible materials at all stages, together with highly innovative energy-saving measures, as required in the call for proposals. In addition to applying to the construction or adaptation of buildings, concern for the environment will be the leitmotiv of the management of these "bio-crèches" and the education programmes for the children that attend them. A total of 5 million euros have been earmarked by the Compagnia for this initiative. A further 700,000 euros have been assigned to the Municipality of Turin (excluded from participation in the call for proposals) for the establishment of a crèche in its area. This initiative will result in the creation of 375 new places in crèches for children in the Piedmont Region over the next two years.

children and for their gradual accompaniment to recovery of domiciliary and occupational independence.

Grants were once again made to associations working on behalf of children with disabilities or serious diseases.

Funds were allocated for the setting up of meeting places for the young where prevention of distress can be achieved by means of appropriate educational and recreational programmes.

The operational stage of the YEPP - Youth Empowerment Partnership Programme - came to an end in 2005. Various social and educational initiatives designed and implemented with the participation of the young people themselves have continued in the two Turin suburbs where it was conducted.

An initial experimentation of an incubator of the enterprises of young persons enabled subjects of the network, as well as the young themselves, to acquire new skills in the conception and execution of their ideas.

Projects for the social reinstatement of adolescents and young persons exposed to the risk of deviancy were funded. A study of unaccompanied foreign minors in the criminal circuit identified some measures that could be started in 2006 in conjunction with the institutions, public bodies and service organisations.

Pathways to social independence

Network projects commenced in previous years were continued in 2005. All were directed to providing persons in difficulty with the chance to reacquire dignity and confidence in their ability to regain their full place in society.

Microcredito sociale is one example. It allows persons without bank guarantees to start up a business. Il Bandolo (the leading thread of a skein) is a network between Local Health Services and a pool of turinese associations providing, to those in mental distress, a number of integrated services among which a telephone helpline. LOGOS is concerned with the social and occupational reinstatement of persons discharged from Piedmont's prisons.

Improvement of the quality of the services and occupational workshops provided for the less able was of equal importance, as was the reorganisation envisaged in the Municipality of Genoa's social planning scheme to secure an integrated approach to the problems of its metropolitan area.

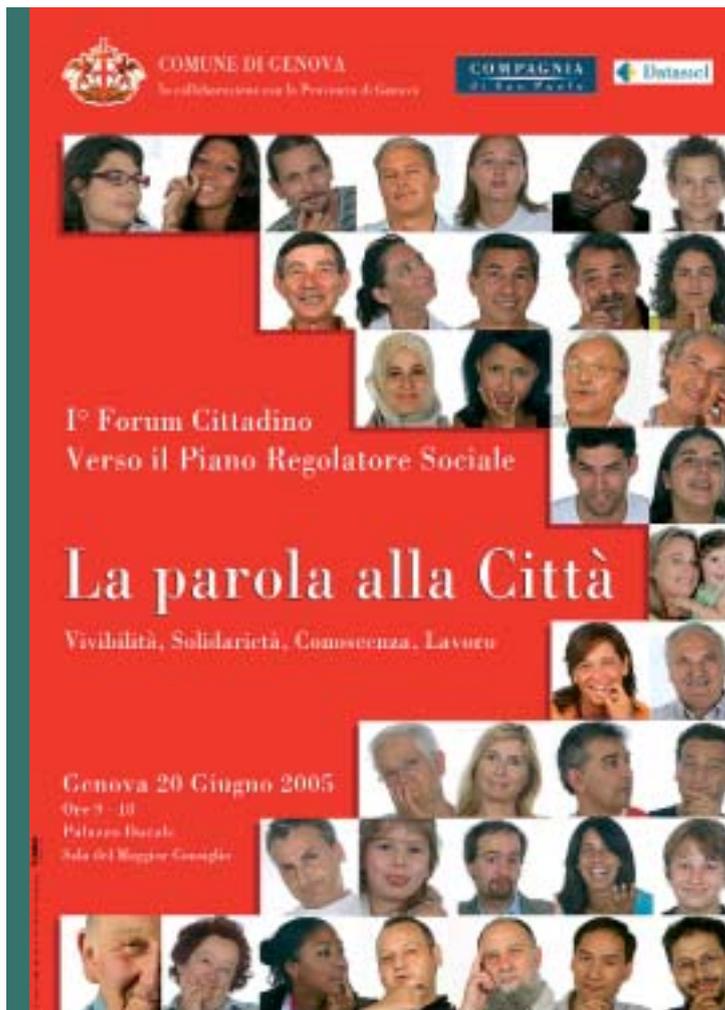

Support was provided for initiatives designed to boost the production and training activities of social cooperatives, some of which are engaged in the rehabilitation of convicts in jail or subject to alternative measures.

The Hammam (Turkish bathhouse) at the Dar Al Hikma Arab-Italian Cultural Centre, Turin

Many highly transverse operations were extended to foreign immigrants to promote their inclusion through the local presence of specialised agencies and specific ethnic associations. Lastly, housing, considered with a group of experts and regarded not just as the provision of physical places for accommodation, but also and above all as a form of integrated approach to persons displaying a need for a hearing and social accompaniment through the construction of a network of nearness and support, has led to the definition of a perimeter that can embrace the Compagnia's operations and will take shape in 2006 and develop thereafter.

Presentation of the Municipality of Genoa's Social Planning Scheme

The Municipality of Genoa's Social Planning Scheme

The Municipality of Genoa has put together a set of operations and social services in the form of a "Social Planning Scheme" that will, over the course of time, introduce new standards and objectives directed to the well-being of the population and rationalisation of some major current initiatives.

Provision is made in the Scheme for critical examination of the existing situation as the prelude to formation of strategies to improve the quality of life of the citizenry through a series of projects with a variety of purposes; provision of income supplement instruments and their pairing, whenever the personal conditions and potential exist, with a project for social inclusion after overcoming a state of need; promotion of home help and care in view of the central role of relatives in treatment and cure, together with the issue of service acquisition vouchers for families housing non-self-reliant persons; establishment of a support network for families in dire straits through reception, accompaniment and support in finding employment and accommodation; promotion of human and environmental upgrading through the identification of preventive measures, creation of meeting and assembly places and opportunities for active participation on the part of the young, and promotion of active representation in district projects in areas where severe urban degradation and social and cultural malaise are responsible for deviated forms of juvenile congregation. Local government departments and service sector organisations drafted the Scheme jointly so as to secure a comprehensive, consensual approach to Genoa's problems.

The Compagnia supported this Scheme with a grant of 1,500,000 euros in 2005.

A dressmaking workshop in Turin, and a Couscoussière in Genoa: two small enterprises supported by the Compagnia's Microcredito Sociale

The Compagnia's Microcredito Sociale

On the occasion of the UN's International Year of Microcredit, the Compagnia, in conjunction with the University of Turin and other public and private players, arranged a microcredit and microfinance meeting and course in Turin during the months of November and December to train operators interested in pursuing this important means of enabling persons without a bank guarantee to set up small businesses. The course was delivered by a dozen or so organisations operating in the industrialised countries and urban contexts in developing countries as bearers of knowledge and experience accrued in the field that will be presented in a volume due for publication.

These events are to be viewed in the light of a microcredit experiment promoted by the Compagnia in November 2003 and still in the process of implementation in the Turin, Genoa, Rome and Naples areas with the support of two banks, namely SanPaoloIMI and SanPaolo Banco di Napoli, and volunteers from the Fondazione Don Mario Operti, Turin, Fondazione Antiusura Santa Maria del Soccorso, Genoa, Fondazione Risorsa Donna, Rome, and Fondazione San Giuseppe Moscati, Naples.

Intersectorial projects

_____ Sums totalling 4,729,500 euros were set aside in 2005 for 24 intersectorial projects approved for the four lines of activity set out in the Compagnia's 2005 programme guidelines.

"Streetkids" project by the "Associazione di Volontariato La Nostra Via" of Turin: residential home for the acceptance, schooling and vocational training of single-parent children at Baia Mare, Romania

A new feature of the Compagnia's operations in 2005 was the introduction of intersectorial projects as an experiment within the bounds of the Foundation and vis-à-vis the outside world in terms of both their contents and the tools employed. The four lines of activity chosen were: Rethinking the mountains - Turin and the Alps; Fostering the donation culture; Children; Turin and development cooperation.

A brief account of the rationale of these themes and some of the most significant projects selected is set out below.

Rethinking the mountains - Turin and the Alps

The complete success of the Winter Olympic and Paralympic Games has done much to enhance Turin's international standing. The Compagnia concentrated its attention, right from the time when the city submitted its candidature, on this event as an opportunity for strengthening the cultural, social and civil potential of Turin and Piedmont, as will be illustrated in the following pages. We promoted training, cultural and social projects concerned with the relationship between the city and its mountains. Examples include the Compagnia's support for the establishment of a social, training and awareness of nature campus in the Municipality of Cantalupa in the Province of Turin, the "Mountains in movement" museum itinerary at Forte di Vinadio prepared by the Associazione Culturale Marcovaldo of Caraglio in the Province of Cuneo, and the project of the Fondazione Montagna Sicura of Courmayeur in the Aosta Valley for the setting up of a technological, management and training Observatory for safety in the mountains and safeguarding the highland environment and the accommodation facilities of the Alps.

Fostering the donation culture

In the wake of what has been the case for years and years in the United States, and more recently in other parts of Europe, the Compagnia believes that Italy, too, should acquire a philanthropic culture suitably encouraged by an appropriate legislative and fiscal framework. A tried and tested mechanism of this kind is provided by "community foundations" that operate in accordance with the needs and expectations of local areas. During 2005, the Compagnia set in motion an initial experiment endowed with substantial funds (supplemented with a further allocation at the start of 2006) for the constitution of the Verbano Cusio Ossola Community Foundation in conjunction with the Cariplo Foundation. Its contribution towards the constitution and first year of activity of the Istituto Italiano della Donazione in Milan, too, was designed to support the development of a "donation culture" that can count on efficacious legislation and methods.

Children

Small children are the subject of the teaching, cultural, medical and social activities of the Compagnia's sectors, and the focus of some of its measures has been shifted towards nurturing the creative and participative potential of children as a contribution towards the development of the nation's future human capital. Mention can be made of the "Open Courtyards" project of the City of Turin's Educational Services which encouraged children to decide how to transform their "territory". On the international scene, support was provided for the "Streetkids" project designed by the Associazione di Volontariato La Nostra Via of Turin for the acceptance, schooling and vocational training of single-parent children at Baia Mare, Romania. Another step towards increasing the chances of boys and girls was taken through the Compagnia's provision of support for the constitution of a children's language and learning disturbances research and action unit at the Department of Anthropological Sciences of the University of Genoa.

Turin and development cooperation

Turin's standing as a promoter of international development is reflected in its hosting of a UN training facility, its many voluntary associations and NGOs engaged in cooperation and the presence of local authorities with a very sensitive attitude towards the subject. In furtherance of its operations in previous years, the Compagnia again contributed to cooperation projects in some areas of Africa in conjunction with NGOs and agencies in the public sector. Grants were allocated to Turin's Missioni Consolata Onlus for the supply of water to its mission at Mukululu in Kenya, and to the RE.TE ONG Associazione di Tecnici per la Solidarietà e la Cooperazione Internazionale of Grugliasco, near Turin, for vocational and job creation in three poor quarters of Maputo, the capital of Mozambique. An operation in a particularly delicate area was that conducted for the "Torino-Kabul Project" for the support of primary training in Afghanistan, which involved the Comando Interregionale Nord of the Brigata Alpina Taurinense.

In the light of the results it achieved in 2005, the Compagnia has decided to implement other intersectorial projects. Two topics have been selected for 2006: "Integrating, educating, empowering to compete" (to be primarily conducted through a call for proposals), and "Fostering the donation culture: community foundations".

Funds for the support of volunteer groups

_____ In keeping with the provisions relating to the volunteerism and its support in sect. 15 of Law No. 266 of 1991, the Compagnia allocates a yearly sum to the special regional funds for the support of volunteer work. These funds are administered by specific management committees and can be drawn upon by centres established to provide services for volunteer groups, in order to support and upgrade their operations. Half of this annual sum is devoted to the Special Fund for Piedmont, since this is the Region in which the Foundation itself is located.

In line with the current regulations, provision was made in the final statements for financial 2005 for the allocation of 8,680,982.08 euros to the special funds of the following Regions:

Piedmont	4,340,982.08	euros
Liguria	900,000	euros
Campania	850,000	euros
Molise	800,000	euros
Sicily	450,000	euros
Basilicata	400,000	euros
Sardinia	400,000	euros
Calabria	270,000	euros
Puglia	220,000	euros
Aosta Valley	50,000	euros

This distribution reflects the Compagnia's wish to favour some Regions that have been particularly efficient in their pursuit of the objectives indicated in sect. 15 of the Act and the Ministerial Order of 8.10.1997, and also to succour Regions with few foundations, especially in the south of Italy and its islands.

In addition, a further 8,680,982.07 euros have been set aside as a prudent measure in expectation of the expiry of the term for impugnation of the decision of the Lazio Administrative Tribunal on 1.6.2005 disallowing an application for annulment of the provisions concerning the ways and means of calculating such allocations set out in the Orientation Instrument issued by the Ministry for the Economy and Finance (formerly the Ministry for the Treasury, Budget and Economic Planning) on 19 April 2001.

Programmes

The Museums Programme

_____ Six areas in Turin will be the scene of the Compagnia's operations during the furtherance of its museums programme:

- the area of the Roman Gates (Porte Palatine), the Museo di Antichità and archaeological park with itineraries of the Roman past;
- Palazzo Reale (the Royal Palace) and the Royal Gardens, Palazzo Chiabrese and "Manica Nuova" (the new wing), the future home of the Galleria Sabauda (Savoy Art Gallery);
- Cavallerizza Reale (the Royal Riding School): new opportunities for exposition areas, which could be integrated with the Royal Palace;
- The via Po and piazza Vittorio Veneto area, in collaboration with the National Cinema Museum pole;
- Palazzo dell'Accademia delle Scienze with the atmospheres and culture of Ancient Egypt- the Egyptian Museum being hosted in the Palace;
- Palazzo Carignano with itineraries of the Italian Risorgimento and Guarini's baroque architecture.

The Programme for the development of the museums district in the inner city of Turin was introduced in 2000. It is the expression of the Compagnia's conviction that museums are a resource for both the promotion of culture and the city's economic and social development.

In addition to the preservation measures needed to ensure the survival of the splendid buildings in which Turin's fine collections are housed, the Compagnia has placed equal emphasis on the introduction of new methods for their management, promotion of the adoption of modern criteria in the presentation and layout of exhibits, and the provision of quality services more closely tailored to the requirements of a growing and increasingly varied public.

Through its signature of the Memorandum of Association of the Fondazione Museo della Antichità Egizie, the Compagnia is a leading player in programming the museum's activities and ensuring that it is properly run. This, indeed, is Italy's first example of the combined public and private management of a collection belonging to the State.

During 2005, the Fondazione's pursuit of innovation was exemplified by two complementary initiatives for which the Compagnia provided support in keeping with its commitment. In the first, extraordinary upkeep operations were undertaken in conjunction with the Region's Cultural and Natural Heritage Department in the stately halls where the exhibits are still displayed in the 19th-century manner, and the entire didactic apparatus was updated. In the second, an exhibition designed to bring out the full worth of the collections in the Statuary Rooms was created by the scenographer Dante Ferretti, whose talent and creativeness went hand in hand with efficiency in the quick preparation of an evocative and appealing interpretation of a part of the museum that was also admired by the many international visitors who came to Turin on the occasion of the 2006 Winter Olympic Games. This exhibition is founded on tutelary principles as a temporary measure prior to the launching of the international competition for the upgrading and extension of the whole of the museum's exhibition areas.

Further steps were taken in 2005 to open parts of Guarini's Palazzo Carignano to the public. The Museo Nazionale del Risorgimento Italiano (National Italian Risorgimento Museum) is also housed in this monumental edifice. Reorganisation of its collections and revamping of their display spaces were continued during the course of the year.

Turin's inner city - aerial view

The Palazzo Reale (Royal Palace) and the part of its grounds attached to the Museo di Antichità (Antiquities Museum) are high on the list of the Programme's objectives. The 17th-century Palazzo Chiabrese beside the Royal Palace, too, was the scene of operations within the compass of the so-called "royal system" that is due to be enhanced by the transfer of the paintings in the Galleria Sabauda (Savoy Art Gallery). In conjunction with the Regional Department, the Compagnia furthered a project for the general remediation and promotion of the true worth of the Palazzo by contributing towards the restoration of its "open" spaces: the forecourt, the cour d'honneur, the arcades and the staircase by Benedetto Alfieri. These operations have upgraded an architecturally and scenographically attractive space and provided a setting for the organisation of exhibitions and other events. Elimination of the parking lots in the courtyards, too, has freed them for cultural functions that will serve to animate a part of the city that has long seemed an anonymous void between the liveliness of the so-called "Roman quadrilateral" and Piazza Castello.

As in the previous operating year, the fund attributed to the Programme received an allocation of 4.5 million euro that raised its initial total to more than 51 million. From 2000 to 2005 about half of this amount was devoted to securing the birth of the new Fondazione Museo della Antichità Egizie, whereas most of the rest has already been earmarked by the Compagnia's management for restoration work designed to change the appearance of a city that is turning to cultural tourism to offset its post-industrial decline and spur its economic and social revival.

The Programme itself is not viewed by the Compagnia as a subsidiary facet of its cultural policies, but as a system capable of triggering consensual decision-making processes without prejudice to the special features of individual situations. This approach is epitomised by the work done at

The 17th-century façade of Palazzo Carignano, Turin

Palazzo Carignano, where completion of the second schedule of operations has resulted in the reinstatement of the quality of the 17th-century façades and restored the original colouring of Guarini's staircase, which links the forecourt, previously restored by the Compagnia, with the Princes' Ballroom that became the Chamber of the Subalpine Parliament when the Savoyes moved out of the palazzo. Since 2000, in fact, the challenge has been to reassert the dignity of an edifice that some scholars see as one of the most evocative inventions in the history of architecture. A monument whose personality brightens one of Turin's best known piazzas without detracting from the architectonic quality of the buildings that surround it, nor the worth of the institutions within them. Restoration of the structure and architectonic quality of Palazzo Carignano has been but the opening chapter of the Compagnia's commitment to securing the best value from the Palazzo's former uses and functions. This, in fact, will continue through the re-evocation of the days when it was a residence following a feasibility study for restoration of the Appartamenti dei Principi (Princes' Apartment) promoted by the Compagnia and drafted by the Soprintendenza per il Patrimonio Storico Artistico ed Etnoantropologico del Piemonte, and also via its role as a museum with the new itinerary and layout of the Museo Nazionale del Risorgimento Italiano (National Italian Risorgimento Museum), a strategic resource for systemic realisation of the true worth of the cultural heritage in Turin's inner city.

The road to the Neuroscience Programme

It was at the start of the year 2001 that the Compagnia's General Council launched the foundation's first long-term programme. This was centred on "research, prevention and cure in the field of oncology", known as the "Oncology Programme" for short.

In April 2004, the Compagnia's Management Committee voted to wind up this programme since it had achieved its objectives on both the clinical and scientific side and in the strengthening of the structural endowments of other centres of excellence. Its total allocation amounted to more the 51 million euros, including 20 million assigned to the original call for proposals issued in September 2001.

Starting with the 2003 Programming Guidelines, the Compagnia declared that "on the base of the logics and methods perfected by the Oncology Programme (...) it intends to potentiate its work in some priority areas that could subsequently provide the setting for long-term programmes".

The 2004 and 2005 Guidelines for the Health sector illustrate the Compagnia's interest in some mainstreams selected in terms of both the social significance of the disorders concerned and the skills present in the Compagnia's operating areas and their growth potential. Neuroscience was one of the mainstreams thus identified.

The term "neuroscience" embraces all the sciences concerned with the nervous system and the brain, including the so-called cognitive sciences, and the disorders associated therewith. The multidisciplinary approach that has become characteristic of investigation of the brain in recent decades has widespread implications in the scientific, technological, health and social fields.

In November 2005, the Management Committee, in the light of the documentation examined during its meeting on 21 November 2005, expressed its agreement with the general lines and objectives set out in a proposal for a Neuroscience Programme for the Compagnia's Research, Education and Health sectors, and forwarded the same to the General Council for the official launching. This took place at the end of February. The Programme's initial endowment is 10 million euros.

As in the case of the Oncology Programme, some neuroscience projects and initiatives already being examined by the Compagnia were passed to the Management Committee at the time when the new Programme was being considered. These are projects held to be of noteworthy scientific value and initiatives designed to reinforce structural conditions in the Turin area in the mainstream comprising advanced training, translational research and basic research in neuroscience (the list forms part of the "Programmes to be activated in science and health" section of the list of operations in 2005).

The resolutions adopted by the Management Committee on that occasion included an allocation of 2.255 million euros composed of resources diverted from the Research and the Education sectors in view of the Programme's intersectorial nature, since it was judged inappropriate to draw on the 10 million euros already set aside as its initial endowment.

The Compagnia's contribution towards Turin 2006

_____ The Compagnia's first measures in favour of the "Turin 2006" operation directed to both organising the XXth Winter Olympic Games and drawing the best benefit from the host region's heritage and potential date back to 1999, when a grant of 258,228 euros was made towards the preparation of a film and audiovisuals to illustrate Turin's cultural heritage and support the ambitious project of the city itself and its Alpine valleys.

This was the commencement of a commitment expressed in the form of 130 allocations that eventually amounted to more than 31 million euros when the IXth Winter Paralympics closed on 19 March 2006, a fortnight after the Olympics.

Nor was this a simply monetary and ad hoc commitment. The Compagnia's spheres of activity do not envisage the provision of support for sports events. The advent of the Olympics was thus taken as an opportunity to accelerate its contributions on this occasion towards the lasting civil, cultural and economic development of local communities within the compass of the sectors defined in its articles of association: Scientific, economic and juridical research, Art, Cultural and environmental heritage, Health and Support for the underprivileged classes of society (Welfare services).

Grants were therefore directed towards the long-term improvement of Turin and its mountains both before and after the Games themselves and as an echo of their heritage.

Examples include support for the "Programme for the prevention of international terrorism. Security measures during major events" prepared by UNICRI, Turin, together with its establishment of a "Permanent international observatory for security measures during events of particular significance". SiTI, one of the Compagnia's permanent organisations was concerned with the environmental monitoring of the Olympic Programme, a task that will continue in the immediate future.

The lion's share of the grants associated with the Winter Olympics was channeled to the Art sector: over 70 totalling almost 9.7 million euros. These were devoted to restoration, upgrading, reinstatement of functions and the presentation of artistic and historical works on the part of parishes and non-profit organisations in the valleys chosen as the venues for the Games. Examples were the more than 3.2 million euros set aside for the Fenestrelle Fortress and the 1.5 million allocated for Novalesa Abbey.

Over forty initiatives fell within the province of the Cultural and environmental heritage sector. The most substantial grant (1.9 million euros) went to Turin's National Mountain Museum for the rearrangement of its collections. Half a million went to the Municipality of Cantalupa for the intersectorial project entitled "Rethinking the mountains. Turin and the Alps", consisting of the creation of a campus for social and training activities and humanistic consciousness-raising.

A further seven million euros were devoted to Piedmontese public health initiatives generated by the Olympics, but designed to confer long-term benefits. The two most substantial measures were the allocation of 2.3 million to improve the diagnosis and treatment of nervous system disorders through structural enhancement of the CTO/CRF/Maria Adelaide Hospital's neuroradiology and neurosurgery units, and 1.5 million for the technological and organisational adaptation of the CTO's emergency departments.

The Welfare services sector was allocated 300,000 euros towards the creation of a sociotherapeutic day centre for the disabled at Sant'Antonino di Susa, and 150,000 for a new Italian Red Cross station in the lower part of the Susa Valley.

The opening ceremony of the IXth Winter Paralympics

Novalesa Abbey in Novalesa, Susa

The 2006 Winter Paralympics attracted more nations and competitors than on previous occasions. The Compagnia's contributions were directed to the Health sector and medical care. A total of 2.3 million euros were allocated for the acquisition of medical equipment and apparatus to be used during the Games and then assigned to the public health service units that had been involved in the event.

The same logic was applied in the provision of 600,000 euros for the "Accessible Transport" project set up to provide, both during the Games and afterwards, a transport service for the disabled in appropriately adapted vehicles. These have since been handed over to Mountain Communities and other regional organisations concerned with the welfare of the disabled.

Further confirmation of the Compagnia's selection of the 2006 Olympics and Paralympics as an opportunity for the long-term enhancement of the cultural, civil and economic potential of Turin and its Alpine valleys was provided in January 2006 when it approved the setting aside of 10 million euros to "consolidate and perpetuate the understanding, awareness and practice of sport as a source of fulfilment for the disabled through the creation of facilities after the Olympics". This shows that the Compagnia will continue to be imbued with the "positive spirit" associated with the Turin Olympics that the President of the Republic, Carlo Azeglio Ciampi, speaking before the final curtain was rung down on the event, hoped would persist and spread through the country as a whole.

Permanent Organisations

The permanent organisations of the Compagnia as a non-profit group

Over the course of the last few years, the Compagnia di San Paolo has become a non-profit group, the only one of this kind in Italy and perhaps in Europe as a whole. Six permanent organisations are the key players in the group's activities. Three of these - Fondazione per l'Arte, Fondazione per la Scuola and Ufficio Pio - stem from redefinition of the mission of bodies long associated with the Compagnia. The other three - Fondazione Collegio Carlo Alberto, Istituto Superiore Mario Boella and SiTI, Istituto Superiore sui Sistemi Territoriali per l'Innovazione - are offshoots of agreements with the University of Turin or the Turin Polytechnic. They may be joined by ISEIGU (Istituto Superiore Europeo Interdisciplinare di Genetica Umana), another body formed in conjunction with both the University and the Polytechnic, during the course of 2006.

The role and the positions of these organisations with regard to the Compagnia's strategic objectives are defined in the 2005-2008 Planning Guidelines. "The underlying idea is that the best course of action consistently with the Compagnia's mission is a "group" arrangement whereby specialised bodies are associated with the central nucleus (the Compagnia). Operating missions are to be associated with the grant making profile - concentrated within the "parent company". The advantages that might ensue from this set-up are: significant levels of specialisation, while guaranteeing integrated strategies and economies of scale. Most of these operating institutions will attract other initiatives from the outside, and have been and will be able to attract or generate additional resources".

It follows - as stated in the Compagnia's 2006 Planning Guidelines, that "it is thus increasingly essential to consider the Compagnia's strategies in terms of "group" governance and determine the effective strategic standing of the permanent organisations within the life of the Compagnia itself". Therefore, "steps are also being taken towards the establishment of "consolidated financial statements" for the Compagnia, so as to provide an overview of the economic, social and cultural impact of the "non-profit" group". The first fruits of these efforts are illustrated in the annual Report on Operations.

The year 2005 was in many ways a period of consolidation of the permanent organisations and the expectation of the official launching of the ISEIGU, as indicated above. Further evidence was provided of the role and authoritativeness of the Istituto Mario Boella and SiTI in research and higher education. The activities of Fondazione per l'Arte were fully worked up. Fondazione per la Scuola brought its first four years of operations to a close and renewed its officers. Fondazione Collegio Carlo Alberto began to serve as the hub of the centres and operations it hosts. The mission of Ufficio Pio was further redefined. A synopsis of their work during the year has been prepared by each of the permanent organisations and is presented on the following pages. Another step towards the establishment of a governance appropriate to the Compagnia di San Paolo non-profit group was taken at the start of 2006 when a meeting of its Management Committee presented an initial resumé of the operations of the permanent organisations during 2005, together with the Planning Guidelines for 2006. An overview of the Compagnia's strategies has thus been provided. Moreover, monitoring of its activities has been facilitated, while equalisation of the standing of the permanent organisations will ensure the certain and rapid availability of the financial resources required for their operations.

Fondazione per l'Arte

www.fondazionearte.it

_____ The Fondazione per l'Arte della Compagnia di San Paolo operated at full steam for the first time throughout the year 2005. In cooperation with the Art Sector, it is engaged in managing projects for specialist training and research in history, art and restoration, in the valorisation and management of the cultural heritage, in the enhancement of Museums Collections.

Training and research

With regard to restoration, the Fondazione participated in the constitution (in March 2005) of the Fondazione Centro per la Conservazione e il Restauro dei Beni Culturali "La Venaria Reale" (Foundation Centre for the Preservation and Restoration of Cultural Property) together with the Ministry for Cultural Heritage and Activities, the Piedmont Region, the University of Turin and the CRT Foundation. Carlo Callieri, President of the Fondazione per l'Arte, was appointed President of the Centre by the Minister for Cultural Heritage and Activities, and the Fondazione per l'Arte is represented on the Council of the Center by Dario Disegni and Riccardo Roscelli. The Fondazione also provided both substantial economic support and organisational contribution for a number of initiatives. Mention may be made of the launching of the Scuola di Alta Formazione e Studio (School for Higher Education and Study) in July, and the international meeting: "The higher education for conservators-restorers. Public and private institutions in Europe" in November.

At the same time, the Fondazione has approved a project for the creation of a Research and Documentation Centre on the Baroque. This was promoted by two members of the Fondazione's Council, Andreina Griseri and Elizabeth Kieven, and drafted by Michela di Macco and Giuseppe Dardanella. The aim is to set up a centre for research on the architectonic, artistic and historiographic features of the Baroque culture, and for the collection and organisation of documents, books and photos.

Moreover, in 2005, preliminary investigations and evaluations of the work required to restore the interior decorations of the church of San Francesco da Paola were completed. The study that emerged has been forwarded to the Compagnia in order to obtain a grant for the operation.

Lastly, support was again provided in 2005 for the computerisation of the files of the historical and artistic records of the Soprintendenza per il Patrimonio Storico Artistico e Etnoantropologico (Governmental Office of Artistic Goods) for entry in the database of the Piedmont Regional Documentation and Cataloguing Centre at Villa della Regina, Turin.

Support for the "Conserving Natural and Cultural World Heritage in Southern Europe" project for the training of UNESCO natural site managers was provided in favour of the Bellagio Forum for Sustainable Development. This initiative will be implemented with Si.T.I - Istituto Superiore sui Sistemi Territoriali per l'Innovazione, which has acquired a significant experience in monitoring the natural heritage.

Valorisation and management of the cultural heritage

Two projects aiming at the valorisation of the collections in Turin's Egyptian Museum were supported. The first was the organisation by Salvatore Settis and Claudio Gallazzi, in cooperation with the Fondazione Museo delle Antichità Egizie (Egyptian Museum Foundation), of the exhibition "The three lives of the Artemidorus Papyrus. Voices and glimpses from Graeco-Roman Egypt" in

Carlo Azeglio Ciampi, President of the Republic of Italy, during his visit to the "The three lives of the Artemidoro's Papyrus" exhibition at Palazzo Bricherasio, Turin

Palazzo Bricherasio. The exhibition that opened on 7 February 2006, and that was soon after visited by the President of the Republic of Italy, presented about 100 objects as an "entourage" for the Artemidorus Papyrus, an exceptional discovery recently acquired and restored by the Fondazione per l'Arte to be loaned to the Egyptian Museum.

The second project - "Piemontegizio" - is a study for the identification, the valorization and the network setting of the Egyptian Archaeological wealth of Piedmont.

Since the end of 2004, the Fondazione, in cooperation with the local authorities and the Piedmont Region, was actively engaged in initiatives for the valorization of the artistic, architectonic and environmental heritage of the Valle di Susa through coordination of the working groups of the "Valle di Susa. Art Treasures and Alpine Culture" Committee, engaged in communication, valorization and management of artistic/cultural property and specifically fortifications, sacred art, archaeology and material culture.

A project for the better appreciation of the museums in the city of Turin during the 2006 Winter Olympic Games was also worked out in cooperation with the Cultural and Natural Heritage Department for the Piedmont Region.

The Fondazione has taken the place of the Compagnia di San Paolo as founder member of Associazione Torino Città Capitale Europea in view of the redefinition of the Association's institutional mission in 2004 and its focusing on the regional development of new museum management models.

Work has started on the compilation of an inventory and the filing of the Fondo Jolanda e Angelo Dragone. This is the final part of a previous donation to the Fondazione in 1996, and it is composed of about 30,000 volumes, together with photographs and documents.

Lastly, further to the project originally started by the Fondazione San Paolo for the Brera Gallery in

*Canvas and wood

Milan, supervision of the work of restoration of Palazzo Citterio and the basement building has been completed, along with the the street layout.

Improvement of Museum collections

An outstanding initiative in this mainstream was the acquisition of the pair of Rakuchu Rakugai screens for the Oriental Art Museum due to be constituted in Turin. Crafted in AD 1626, they were previewed on 25 May 2005 at the "Japan. The art of mutation" exhibition at Palazzo Ducale in Genova.

Two paintings from the collection of Princess Maria Beatrice of Savoy acquired from Christie's in London have been loaned to the Sabauda Gallery. The first is a portrait of Maria Margherita of Savoy by Giovanni Caracca. The second is the "Triumph of Venus and Love" by Claudio Francesco Beaumont. Both were displayed in the "Our Flemish painter. Giovanni Caracca at the Savoy Court (1568-1607)" exhibition staged in the Sabauda Gallery (September 2005 - January 2006).

The Fondazione also acquired, at an auction, a drawing representing the "Crucifixion" by Gaudenzio Ferrari, to be loaned to the Accademia Albertina Gallery.

The archives of Giuseppe Gallo (1860-1927), a leading exponent Piedmontese Sacred Baroque Revival architecture, were acquired during the course of 2005. Their cataloguing and filing prior to their transfer to the due to be established Baroque Research and Documentation Centre has already begun.

Contemporary art

Collaboration with the Istituto Nazionale per la Grafica in Roma for the promotion of contemporary art exhibitions continued in 2005. The Fondazione gave a grant to the 4th "Vetrine alla calcografia" exhibition entitled "Pasolini and us. Relationships between art and cinema" held (November-December) in the Palazzo della Calcografia in Rome and Turin's State Archives on the occasion of the anniversary of the death of the great director and intellectual.

Fondazione per la Scuola

www.fondazione scuola.it

_____ The Fondazione per la Scuola is one of the Compagnia di San Paolo's permanent organisations. It works to improve the quality of education through its direct support of teaching institutions and promotion of the independence of schools.

In keeping with the provisions of its by-laws, it pursues the following objectives:

- facilitation of the transfer of innovative experiences, both Italian and foreign;
- promotion of education aimed at democracy and citizenship through the provision of a better understanding of contemporary history and European institutions;
- support for the right to learn and opposition to exclusion from society.

Programme guidelines for 2006

Completion of both the term of office of its management and its first four years' operations made 2005 an important landmark for the Fondazione. Its prime objectives are thus the consolidation of its main programmes and strengthening the know-how it has acquired from the initiatives in progress. Education aimed at democracy and European citizenship, promotion of the historical and artistic heritage, popularisation of science and the teaching of contemporary history are seen as priorities for its network of schools. Its collaborative relationships with other educational institutions and the Compagnia's other permanent organisations will be strengthened and attention will be directed to the communication of its achievements.

2005 has thus been viewed as both a year of completion and enrichment and an opportunity for critical assessment of the experience acquired during the Fondazione's first four years.

Highlights of 2005

The 5th and 6th Concorso Centoscuole were conducted and twenty Euro 15,000 prizes were awarded. The winning institutions were involved in the Scuole in Rete (schools on the net) programme, whose activity was pursued through the Accademia della Fondazione, which provided two first-level cooperative learning courses, as experimented in 2004, and a follow-up for those who participated in previous "Academies".

The Fondazione's work in this field was also continued through its involvement, together with Province of Turin, in the "Practising and vocational education communities supported by cooperative learning" project for consolidation of the schools concerned.

The Centomontagne project advanced to the stage of choosing the winners of the Centomontagne award for mountain schools. The programme of the workshops to be held in Piedmont's valleys in March 2006 was also drawn up.

On the subject of education aimed at democracy and European citizenship, the EuropaClub project was extended to some European schools in 2005. Its mainstream activities - reading, IT and statistics workshops, and inter-regional and international European training seminars and meetings, including the sharing and evaluation of activities - were confirmed.

The Concorso La Stampa per l'Europa, a competition for projects on European issues, and the 2nd Concorso Eustory on the subject of "Technological innovation, and daily life in Europe since the end of the second world war" were concluded. The Fondazione also hosted the 5th Young

Fifth "Concorso Centoscuole" prize-giving in the hall of the Fondazione per la Scuola, Turin, on 7 March 2005

Adults Academy, Eustory's annual workshop.

On the subject of promotion of the historical and artistic heritage, the La Regal Torino programme, implemented this year with the Municipality, took schools on 11 thematic itineraries with the city as their topic and time as their leitmotiv. Their products and concluding events were presented in an exhibition entitled "The city through the eyes of schoolchildren". Janua-Genova Porta dei Mari was conceived as a continuation of the previous version. The paths already followed were consolidated and two new subjects, Japan and the Risorgimento, were added. Progress, too, was made through the inclusion of a course for teachers on the ways and means of enjoyment and transmission of the cultural and museum heritage.

As envisaged in the guidelines, a science teaching programme designed to spread awareness of techniques and science among students was started. The Cento giovani scienziati competition was held. Another feature was the Napoli provare per credere project. This concentrates on scientific issues and will provide Naples with the equivalents of La Regal Torino and Janua. Specific learning paths backed by the resources of the Città della Scienza are offered. The Fondazione has also supported the elaboration of an introductory science teaching course for supply teachers.

Ongoing study and research initiatives were continued. The "Gold Train" project's competition led to the experimental transfer of good teaching practices among the schools. Several matters were completed: examination in depth of the Esperienza scolastica dei giovani, the subject of a seminar for operators in the sector; a survey of "Use of the Internet for teaching and the initial results of the try-out of a regional telematic network in Piedmontese schools"; Città educative: limiti e potenzialità, which examines the educational experiences of some Italian and foreign cities.

With regard to the school-employment issue, the Fondazione, following its collaboration with

The Fondazione per la Scuola's first "Academy", Isola di San Servolo, Venice, 7-11 January 2004

Asseforcamere and the Ministry for Education, the Universities and Research, published the results of its "Inteventi integrati per lo sviluppo locale" in its I Quaderni series. The independence of schools was examined in two new measures: a series of seminars entitled "For schools that are independent and responsible", in conjunction with the TreeLLLe Association, and research on "Quality of school training, use of resources and forms of funding: the Italian case in a comparative setting".

The Fondazione is also involved in the elaboration of the "On-line course on the history of industry in the north-west since 1850" prepared by CSI-Piemonte and the recipient of a grant from the Compagnia.

Progetto Qualità proceeded during the year with courses on self-evaluation, improvement of the school service and preparation for certification.

The Fondazione's well-established commitment towards the Borse di Studio Educatorio Duchessa Isabella and Provaci ancora, Sam, a measure against wastage in schools. The latter set out to achieve better coordination of local resources by offering teachers courses on logic, mathematics and behaviour.

Communication with schools was frequently accomplished through local meetings devoted to relaunching their independence. Some "Popularisation of research" meetings attended by teachers and principals, as on previous occasions, were arranged to publicise the results of the Fondazione's own studies.

The Fondazione's publications included the addition to its I Quaderni series of four titles illustrating the results of experiments undertaken during 2005. More numbers of its electronic newsletter were issued and its "Teaching contemporary history in Europe" was published by Il Mulino. Lastly, an in-house training school has been founded to potentiate the Fondazione's human capital and enhance its status as a learning organisation.

www.ufficiopio.torino.it

_____ The Ufficio Pio of the Compagnia di San Paolo has been engaged in the provision of care and assistance for the weaker classes of society since 1595. Its efforts are centred on individual persons and families in difficulty in the Greater Turin area.

The pattern of its operations established in 2003 was maintained during 2005 through the strengthening of its projects and the consolidation of measures and courses designed to overcome reliance on charity and secure social integration.

The Ufficio's four method objectives are inherent in all its actions:

- In-depth investigation of new forms of poverty in order to devise measures to prevent persons in difficulty from embarking on a course that will eventually lead them to call for assistance;
- Making the best use of the role of the Delegates as a valuable local resource through their provision of indications which can be used to interpret the changes that emerge in a constantly evolving society and work out new strategies (meetings, training and optimum development of individual skills and experiences);
- Consolidation of its interaction with the Compagnia's Welfare Services sector so as to sharpen its commitment in areas of distress by expanding its ability to try out common projects appropriate to new social needs and applicable across the categories of persons in difficulty (in addition to ongoing initiatives, such as the Logos project for the reinstatement of discharged convicts in society, other forms of collaboration will tackle issues such as psychological distress, deviance on the part of minors and housing);
- Formation of collaboration networks with other local subjects actively engaged in these social problems by promoting dialogue and elaborating extensive projects for the coordination of individual competences in joint actions.

These considerations underlay the Ufficio's operations in the following settings during 2005:

Social capability paths

These are designed to secure the social and cultural insertion of adults through promotion of their independence so as to prevent the confluence of the "new poor" into the state of living on welfare. During 2005, 61 employment-plus- training grants were provided, including 24 for foreigners. Jobs were eventually obtained by more than 50% of the beneficiaries. Training courses aimed at securing the employment of Italian and foreign women in difficulty were continued with the allocation of 8 employment-plus-training grants and the direct placement of 4 persons. Other measures consisted of two new training courses for "bakers and pizza cooks" attended by 32 persons already assisted by the Ufficio, and the Logos project for the reinstatement of discharged convicts in society, for which the Ufficio provided 17 employment-plus-training grants. This project is run by the Compagnia, the Piedmont and Aosta Valley Prisons Administration Department, the Eta Beta Social Cooperative, I.P.A.B. Casa Benefica, and the Hansel and Gretel Association.

Measures on behalf of foreign immigrants

The "Foreigners' Counter" service launched in 2004 consolidated its efforts to secure integration

The "bakers and pizza cooks" training course through the provision of information and advice, the commencement of independence paths and support for families with young children. About 600 contacts resulted in 403 interviews. Foreigners now account for 17% of those assisted compared with only 5.4% in 2004.

Other projects

In addition to its mainstream operations, the Ufficio began projects in other settings: the "Canteens Project" in support of the ordinary management of some of the city's welfare canteens in the form of a contribution towards the cost of about 20,000 meals; the Provaci ancora, Sam project, a measure for the prevention and recovery of wastage in schools, which involved 569 children in prevention and 156 in the recovery modules; the "Laid-off employees" project, which assisted 158 families in the Province of Turin. A social voucher known as the "School Ticket" was introduced in 2005 for the purchase of school materials. This benefited a total of 869 primary and first- and second-grade secondary schoolchildren.

Lastly, 199 children benefited from summer initiatives, namely seaside holidays for the very young and "Spazio Giovani" for adolescents, while another 800 or so were supported in the "Estate Ragazzi" initiatives promoted by other bodies and associations. The Ufficio also contributed to the summer sojourns of 27 elderly persons and 16 disabled persons in difficult situations.

Projects as a whole resulted in an outlay of almost 2.2 million euros.

"Social first aid"

Timely handling of emergency situations faced by Italian individual persons and families in difficulty was continued by the Ufficio in 2005 as part of its ordinary work. Its Via Sant'Anselmo offices received 6,639 persons and benefits amounting to a little less than 2.4 million euros were handed out during the course of the year.

Training course for migrant women in difficulty

The resources

The Ufficio's total resources for the year, including income from capital and donations, amounted to more than 5 million euros, almost entirely contributed by the Compagnia. After the deduction of 400 thousand euros to cover its operating costs, it was able to confer benefits 4.6 million euros.

In addition, under the terms of a specific donation (Pro Milite Italico), the Ufficio continued to manage the "Villa Mater" rest home at Rivoli, near Turin, which accommodates 39 elderly persons, of whom 10 are not self-reliant.

The Delegates

The Ufficio's activities are rendered possible by the work of the Delegates. As already mentioned, they are a valuable local resource through their provision of indications that can be used to interpret changes in society, as well as for the handling of benefits to elaborate wider personal follow-up projects for those assisted. Recruitment and training of new volunteers continued during the year to furnish a progressively efficacious answer to both old and new forms of poverty and the growing number of persons in distress and indigence. The admission of 14 new Delegates means that there are now 209 members of the Ufficio Pio San Paolo Volunteers Association. The Delegates operate both in Local Districts and in Special Districts composed of volunteers with specific skills in the handling of particular types of need (job seeking, prison, hospitals, foreigners, etc.).

Fondazione Collegio Carlo Alberto

www.collegiocarloalberto.it

_____ The Fondazione Collegio Carlo Alberto was founded by the Compagnia di San Paolo and the University of Turin for the purpose of "promoting, managing and potentiating research and higher education in economics, finance and juridical economics, as well as their related disciplines". Its articles also commit it to the "full and proper enjoyment, including the undertaking of their restoration, restructuring and extension, of the buildings of the Collegio Carlo Alberto in Moncalieri, and their management as premises for teaching, research and scientific debate".

The Fondazione's current chairman is Domenico Siniscalco, who succeeded Onorato Castellino in March of 2006.

The Fondazione hosts and coordinates numerous teaching and research initiatives involving both Italian and foreign teachers, researchers and students.

In recent years, cooperation and integration of holders of doctorates and master's degrees and research centres without prejudice to their independence have been stimulated to render the Fondazione a community of scholars who interact irrespective of the diversity of their specific interests.

The recent broadening of its activities has made it increasingly international. A uniform method for the evaluation of results has been drawn up and two reviewing committees have been appointed.

Two post-doc fellowships for the 2005-2006 and another two for the 2006-2007 academic year have been assigned. Other residential research grants for various periods are open to senior scholars. The title of "Carlo Alberto Fellow" has been conferred on twelve faculty who have undertaken to carry out a significant portion of their research at the Collegio.

The Fondazione's average daily attendance during the year consisted of 34 faculty and directors of research centres, 66 researchers, 40 students reading for a doctorate and 50 reading for a master's degree.

Four doctoral programmes were active in 2005: Economics (coordinated by Giuseppe Bertola and Alessandro Sembenelli, web.econ.unito.it/dotsciecon/); Economics of complexity and creativity (coordinated by Cristiano Antonelli and Roberto Marchionatti, www.de.unito.it/web/member/segreteria/dottcreativita/); Actuarial and financial economic decisions (coordinated by Paolo Ghirandarto, web.econ.unito.it/gma/dottorato/); Institutions, economics and law (coordinated by Giuseppe Ajani, www.iel-turin.it). The first three are administered by the University of Turin, the fourth stems from an agreement between the University of Turin, Cornell Law School, École Polytechnique, Paris, and the University of Ghent. Furthermore, CORIFE Piemonte (www.coripe.unito.it), a consortium composed of the University of Turin, the Piedmont Region, the Compagnia di San Paolo, the CRT Foundation, the Turin Chamber of Commerce, the City of Turin and the Province of Turin, chaired by Terenzio Cozzi and directed by Vittorio Valli, has been conducting a master's degree course in economics since 1990, in finance since 1998, and in health economics and policy since 2004. These "courses of excellence" have attracted highly rated graduates from many regions of Italy and from abroad.

Research coordinated by the Fondazione has been undertaken by: CeRP (Center for Research on Pensions and Welfare Policies); LABORatorio R. Revelli; Center for Studies on Federalism, HERMES (Higher Education and Research on Mobility Regulation and the Economics of Local

The final project for the establishment of a multipurpose teaching and research centre through the radical revamping and extension of the building complex of the Collegio Carlo Alberto is in the process of completion.

In 2005, CeRP (cerp.unito.it), directed by Elsa Fornero, worked on topics relating to the sustainability and adequacy of social security systems within the compass of the EU project "Adequacy of Old-Age Income Maintenance in the EU" conducted within an international network. It also engaged in studies of redistribution in social security systems, workers' participation in pension funds, asset classes for institutional investors, and the effects of the reform of the severance indemnity system on the cost of capital for SMEs. The results of these studies have been disseminated through an annual conference ("Individual behaviour with respect to retirement saving": 14.10.2005) and a series of seminars. Seven new working papers (nos. 40-46) have been published.

The LABORatorio R. Revelli (www.labor-torino.it), directed by Bruno Contini, closed its first five years with a very satisfactory record. Its international visibility has been enhanced by the quality of its completed projects, as well as the elaboration of WHIP (Work Histories Italian Panel), an almost unique working tool in the Italian panorama recently placed on line with documented standard files in English and Italian. During 2005, it followed four lines of research that have become its strong points: (i) expansion of the WHIP database; (ii) empirical investigation of labour microeconomics issues; (iii) evaluation of policies; (iv) elaboration of microsimulation models of factors acting on the labour market and industrial dynamics.

The Center for Studies on Federalism (www.csfederalismo.it), chaired by Antonio Padoa Schioppa and directed by Umberto Morelli, is engaged in scientific and didactic research, information and documentation of federalism. It has examined the following topics: comparative analysis of the role of second legislative chambers; relationships between European and national judges in the EU; cooperation between courts and mutual recognition of criminal law decisions; broadening of the EU; the European system of electronic communications; security in the EU; the European dream as seen from America; the European federal enterprise; Piedmont in the European integration process; globalisation and cosmopolitical democracy; Altiero Spinelli and the idea of the Constituent Body. Research on the stability and growth pact, harmonisation of taxes in the EU and, in conjunction with Investimenti Torino Piemonte, "Identification of the methods and best practices of regional FDI attraction agencies" has been completed. The Centre's series of books published by Giuffrè has been joined by "A constitution for the European Union. Sovereignty, Representation, Competences, Constituent process", U. Morelli (ed.); "Federalismo, ecologia politica e partiti verdi", G. Grimaldi. Tzvetan Todorov's lecture on "L'avenir de la démocratie en Europe" has been published and Nos. 0 and 1 of the Bibliographical Bulletin on Federalism have appeared. The first edition of the "Law and Business in Europe" course has been conducted in conjunction with the Istituto universitario di studi europei. An international meeting on the subject of second chambers was arranged (31 March - 1 April), together with seminars (including one on the European Constitution as part of the course for the master's degree in European institutions and policies). Some volumes were also presented.

HERMES (www.hermesricerche.it), chaired by Giovanni Frequelli, conducts research on public utilities, especially local public transport, its legal aspects, monitoring of the application of its standards, assessment of its level of efficiency and evaluation of possible incentives. Attention is also directed to other regulated network services (energy, water and the environment), since liberalisation of the market has encouraged diversification of the network services provided by many public utilities. The results of these studies are published as working papers and on the pages of Italian and international journals.

URGE (www.urge.it) is directed by Maurizio Ferrera. During 2005, it continued to investigate issues falling within the ambit of its mainstays: social citizenship, new forms of social governance, EU public policies and European governance. Great care was taken to ensure that the results of its researches were widely distributed both in academia and among decision makers. Papers were presented at congresses and articles were published in Italian journals. Works published in English included "The Boundaries of Welfare" (OUP) by M. Ferrera, and an essay by M. Ferrera and S. Sacchi appearing in "The Open Method of Coordination in Action", J. Zeitlin & P. Pochet (ed.). Another essay by M. Ferrera was presented to the British prime minister and adopted at the Hampton Court summit during the British EU presidency. URGE also organised several seminars and a meeting on social governance in Europe attended by some of the world's leading experts in this field.

Istituto Superiore Mario Boella

www.ismb.it

_____ The Istituto Superiore Mario Boella (ISMB) was founded by the Compagnia di San Paolo and the Turin Polytechnic in 2000. Its original mission, as defined in its by-laws, was to pursue three objectives:

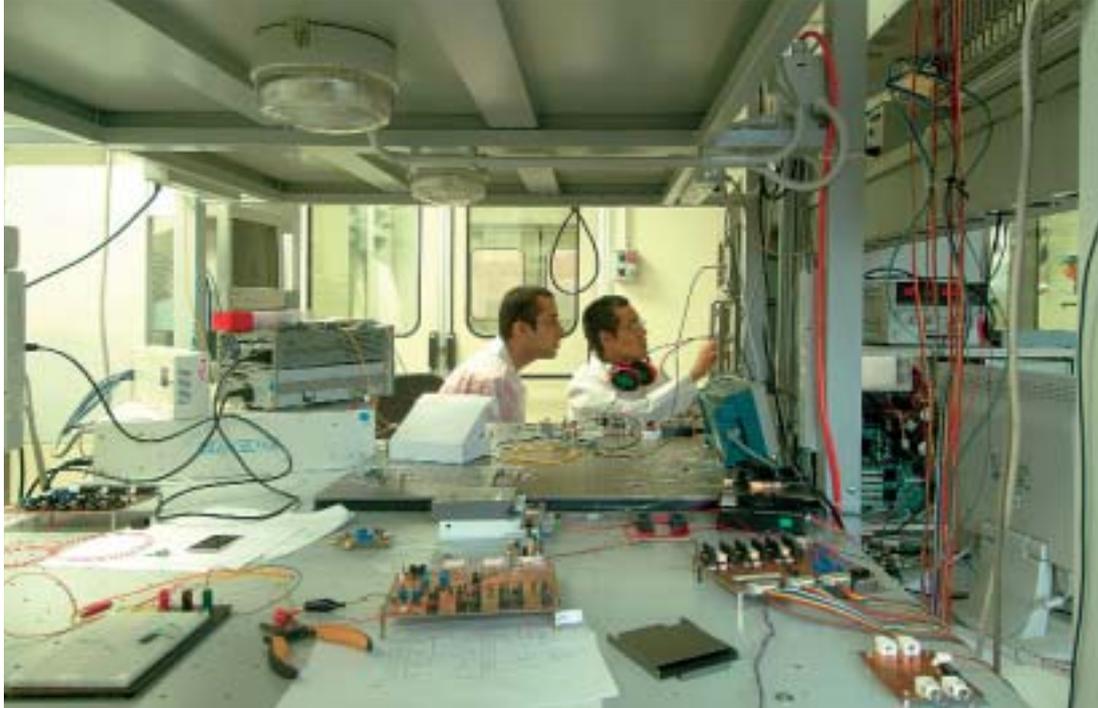

- promotion of multidisciplinary technological R & D programmes;
- support for innovative teaching initiatives based on research results and enhancing the Polytechnic's Information and Communications Technologies (ICT) syllabi;
- furtherance of the understanding of the increasing interconnection between social transformation, organisational changes and new technologies.

ISMB's subsequent development has led to its concentration on the first objective. It has, in fact, become an applied research centre serving Piedmontese firms engaged in the wireless sector: cooperation at various levels has been established with about 30 companies. Its original members, too, have been joined by Motorola, SKF, STMicroelectronics and Telecom Italia. Since the end of 2003, ISMB has been located on the Polytechnic's new premises in the area which is becoming the technological centre of the new Turin. It is housed in what used to be the turnery shop of the Italian State Railways, now restructured with a contribution from the Compagnia, where its research in association with the Polytechnic and its industrial members is conducted on an area of about 4000 square metres. About 200 persons are engaged in research on several interlinked subjects: photonics, electromagnetic compatibility, fixed and wireless networks, e-security, satellite positioning systems, microelectronics and nanotechnologies, and multimedia mobile phone technologies and their applications. Some laboratories are shared with industrial companies: Accent (including a design centre), Laben, Sendia (in Los Angeles) and STMicroelectronics. ISMB also works in conjunction with top-flight international institutions: Chicago's University of Illinois, Berkeley University, the University of California's Anderson School of Management and Henry Samueli School of Engineering, the FAF Munich University, the Beijing Post and Telecommunications University, and the Canadian High Institute of Telecommunications. ISMB is a member of ERTICO, the European intelligent transport systems organisation, and WINMEC, the Los Angeles-based group of international companies and institutions engaged in the wireless sector.

ISMB's programme guidelines for 2005 envisage:

- stabilisation of its technological laboratory research together with the Polytechnic and industrial firms and concentration on application with an eye to taking out patents to serve as the core for the creation of new companies;
- dissemination of the patent culture in agreement with the Turin Wireless Foundation;
- stimulation, in agreement with the Turin Wireless Foundation, of the formation and growth of local SMEs to incentivise the development of hi-tech skills in existing products and the elaboration of innovative products;
- continuation of higher education (master's degree), technology-to-business intelligence (Observatory), and ICT & Society in conjunction with technological research.

ISMB's photonics laboratory

The 2005's main initiatives comprise participation in 10 projects cofunded by Italian institutions, including FIRB PRIMO (reconfigurable platforms for mobile interoperability), a project involving both the universities and industry and cofunded by the Ministry for Education, the Universities and Research. ISMB is also engaged in 14 projects confund by the European Commission, one of which requires coordination of the Newcom excellence network composed of 60 European institutions with 800 researchers. Lastly, according to the terms of the memorandum of understanding signed by Minister Moratti and the UCLA in October 2004, ISMB is one of the Italian institutions enabled to take part in the joint ad hoc wireless net research programmes run by the latter's Henry Samueli School of Engineering.

Resources totalling about 7 million euros were devoted to research in 2005. Fifteen patent applications were filed or are in the process of registration. About a dozen SMEs were supported by ISMB through targeted research funded by the Turin Wireless Foundation, Mention may be made of four outstanding results:

- Photonics lab: system for boosting the transmission rate and distance of optical fibres to 10 Mbit/sec, 400 m, by means of coding and error correction techniques;
- e-security lab: software for the automatic recognition and blockade of illicit P2P file exchanges, and possible creation of a dedicated company;
- Networking and Microsystems labs: elaboration of sensors and sensor nets for use on motorways (environment and vehicle monitoring) and car-to-car sensor nets, characterisation of Wi-Fi communications in industrial settings (disturbances, transmission and overall service quality).

Particular attention must also be drawn to the results obtained with regard to satellite navigation systems and the "Galileo" European system project. Both ISMB and the Turin Polytechnic are members of the European teams that have been assigned six funded projects within the compass of the VIth Framework Programme. The ESA has selected ISMB's satellite navigation lab as a component of its network of stations monitoring EGNOS, the first system along the road to "Galileo". This lab's operations on behalf of the Torino Time consortium set up to secure the selection of Turin as both the home of the station generating the time scale and and delivering it to the system (Precision Timing Facility - PTF) and the supplier of its associated timing services resulted in assignment to the consortium of the task of preparing the PTF version for orbit validation. This is the only Galileo infrastructure station so far assigned to Italy.

As to higher education, 152 persons were involved in a variety of activities, mostly hi-tech master's degree courses in ISMB's research sectors. A new form of higher education partnership was initiated with the foundation of "Mario Boella" chairs at universities intending to collaborate with ISMB in its research projects. Two of ISMB's sections are dedicated, in conjunction with the other sectors, to investigation of the interaction between ICT and the social environment. The Technology-to-Business Intelligence section examines the generation and diffusion of ICT innovations in both the new and the "mature" sectors. The ICT & Society section explores the relationships between ICT and socio-economic dynamics. ISMB is a member of the Turin Wireless Foundation, which promotes the joint commitment of the leading players in social and economic development to enhancement of Piedmont's competitiveness in the ICT area.

SiTI - Istituto Superiore sui Sistemi Territoriali per l'Innovazione

www.siti.polito.it

SiTI - Istituto Superiore sui Sistemi Territoriali per l'Innovazione is a non-profit organisation founded by the Turin Polytechnic and the Compagnia di San Paolo in September 2002. It provides research and higher education on innovation sustainability and socio-economic growth.

Its offices, classrooms and laboratories occupy an area of 4000 square metres, located on the new campus of the Polytechnic and housed in a historic industrial building (the former turnery shop of the Italian Railways), now restructured with a contribution from the Compagnia.

It is one of the Compagnia's permanent organisations with a strong interdisciplinary connotation and specifically devoted to territorial systems. It aims at solving complex problems through an integration of the expertise that is available at Turin Polytechnic, and by linking it with other high level national and international research centres.

With a unity of purpose with the Polytechnic, SiTI's mission is to promote, conduct and strengthen research aimed at the elaboration of methods for the solution of real problems and dissemination of the knowledge acquired. It also provides higher education in the following theme areas: city and territory, environment and landscape, innovation and development, architecture and heritage, infrastructures and transport, integrated security systems.

Its main objectives include assessment of the specific features of the territory as a step towards the formation and organisation of clusters, and the implementation of measures for the introduction and development of high-quality innovative activities.

In 2005, SiTI's activities were greatly expanded in the "key sectors" of infrastructures, urban and environmental transformations and integrated security solutions for the territory.

Particular attention was devoted to the elaboration of specific European and Italian research programmes through the consolidation of its relationships with ISMB (Istituto Superiore Mario Boella), JRC (Ispra's Joint Research Centre), UNICRI (UN Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute) and WHO (World Health Organisation).

Many substantial projects were completed during the year: the monitoring of the Salerno – Reggio Calabria motorway, a study for the reorganisation of Turin's central railway station - Porta Nuova - and of Caserta's Royal Palace.

A particularly substantial facet of SiTI's work is its connection with UNESCO's heritage sites in Italy (Portovenere, the Cinque Terre and the Palmaria, Tino and Tinetto islands, the Cilento and Vallo di Diano National Park, and the Caserta Royal Palace) and their Management Plans. In association with Fondazione per l'Arte (a sister permanent organization of the Compagnia di San Paolo), it has been chosen as the guarantor of the governance of rehabilitation projects (with main focus on the management plans) in complex situations, such as the cultural and environmental district of Sicily's Val di Noto.

A major research project has concerned with Genoa and the issues related to its harbour as a "node" within Europe's traffic and seaports system. Funded by the SanPaolo IMI Group, terminal managers and a significant faction within the port business community, it has assessed the operational and economic feasibility of the establishment of a logistic and transport system beyond the Apennines, involving innovative solutions for the handling and carriage of very high volumes of containers, in view of the rapidly growing demand for capacity.

The first stage of a study in the infrastructures and mobility field has been completed: SiTI and the Université de Savoie in conjunction with the "Laboratoire des Transports" of CAFI (Provinces of Turin, Imperia, Cuneo and the borderland districts) have been working on the accessibility, multimodal (goods and passengers) transportation and economic attractiveness of their relevant areas.

In the theme area of security SiTI has presented a research proposal for a European-funded project involving Turin's Transport Authority (GTT) and the Prague and Lille Metropolitan Railways. It has also participated in projects dealing with the protection of container traffic, the security of airports and of major events, and it has been conducting a significant self-funded programme for security in crowded places.

The design and implementation of large infrastructures must take into account the risks posed by the presence of sensitive areas, and hence the need for integrated transport safety and security systems: SiTI has been assigned the realization of a study on the infomobility associated with Corridor V by the Presidency of the Council of Ministers. This will be carried out in collaboration with Turin's CSST and other partners.

On the theme area of city and territory, the aim is to promote research on the advantages, competitive capability and opportunities offered by networking and cooperation on the part of urban and territorial systems within the bounds of Community development and cohesion policies, and with reference to the forms of governance and integrated design and planning such policies promote at various local levels.

This field embraces SiTI's work on the reorganisation and upgrading of Turin's Mirafiori area. Following recent agreements between Fiat and the local Authorities, this issue has reached a crucial stage, in which also the Turin Polytechnic is interested for the opportunity of having its Automobile Design and Engineering higher education facilities hosted. A specific focus has been given to the Water Utilities: SiTI has elaborated a research programme with the Genoa, Turin and

in SiTI*

Naples waterworks (AMGA, SMAT and ARIN), involving the WHO.

Particular attention has been directed to the improvement of security measures in museums. SiTI, in conjunction with the Fondazione per l'Arte and Axa-Art, aims to provide museums, archives and historic buildings with technical solutions and procedures designed to secure substantial reductions of risks with the immediate benefit of lower insurance premiums.

Lastly, SiTI has financed agreements to host in its premises the operations of the Urban Centre, EUPOLIS and the High Quality Laboratory (territorial integrated project).

In the ambit of higher education, SiTI in conjunction with the Turin Polytechnic:

- financed four 3-year study grants associated with the introduction of the new doctorate in Environment and Territory at the Polytechnic. This initiative brings together four doctorates (in Automatics and Computer Sciences for Transportation Systems, Estimate and Economic Assessment, Environmental Geoengineering, Territorial Planning and Local Development) merging the qualifications conferred by these integrable disciplines;
- established contacts for postgraduate programmes addressed to site managers in cultural and environmental heritage; this in conjunction with the Italian Government, UNESCO and Bellagio Forum;
- continued the relationships with Turin's COREP, the Catholic University and Milan Bocconi University for stages, as well as the participation in the higher education projects of the Alta Scuola Politecnica of the Turin and Milan Polytechnics;
- intensified training activities in association with ARPA ("Federico II" University, Naples) and the collaboration with the Agenzia del Territorio of the Ministry for the Economy;
- analysed possibilities to provide facilities (spaces and equipment) in the field of Safety and Security.
- financed fifteen research allowances associated with SiTI's main activities; through this stable collaborators might be identified.

Communication

_____ The recent past has been marked by an exponential growth in the dynamics of communication and the flow of information. It has thus become evident that efficacious communication can be turned into a powerful source of momentum for the Compagnia's initiatives and purposes. Communication, both as simple promotion and the broadcasting of events, initiatives and project, serves as a fertiliser for all the local organisations to which the Compagnia's attention is directed.

The ways and means of communication

Communication on the part of the Compagnia is transparent, pointed, simple and widely channelled to reach the greatest number of persons and potential enjoyers of its initiatives.

Several forms of publication are regularly employed to achieve these ends:

- publication and distribution of official documents setting out the Compagnia's short- and medium-term strategies: the Annual Report on Activities, the Programme Guidelines and the Long-term Planning Guidelines;
- a quarterly newsletter, first published in 1997, through which the Compagnia keeps its stakeholders up to date with regard to its current operations and examines outstanding current topics;
- press releases and press conferences addressed to the local, national and international mass media, whereby the collaboration of the radio, TV and newspaper results in channelling of the Compagnia's initiatives and the events organised during the course of the year;
- news reports for the media. Used by the Compagnia to publicise the work and results of its grantees;
- press ads and billboards.

COMPAGNIA
di San Paolo

Nata nel 1963 come confederata a fini benefici, la Compagnia di San Paolo è oggi una fondazione di diritto privato tra le maggiori in Europa e persegue finalità di utilità sociale, allo scopo di favorire lo sviluppo civile, culturale, economico. È attiva nei settori della ricerca scientifica, economica e giuridica, dell'istruzione, dell'arte e dei beni ambientali, dei beni e delle attività culturali, della sanità, dell'assistenza alle categorie sociali deboli.

La promozione del libro e della lettura

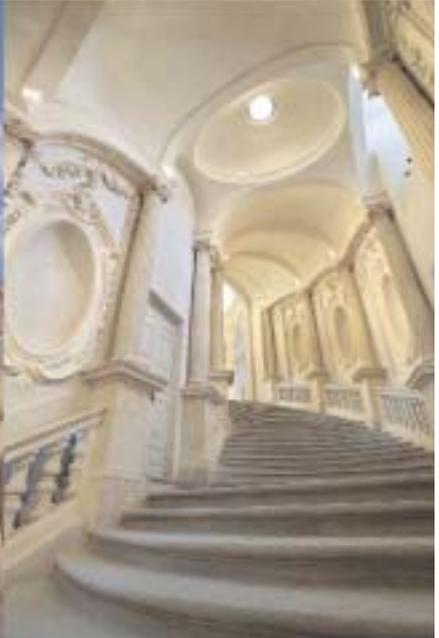

Nell'ambito della sua attività in campo culturale, la Compagnia di San Paolo ha assunto come impegno forte e costante il sostegno e l'attività di livello nazionale e internazionale per la promozione del libro e la conoscenza della letteratura, attraverso diverse modalità e più canali, grazie a spazi e luoghi dedicati alla conservazione e alla consultazione dei libri. Segnaliamo il impegno a favore dello sviluppo delle biblioteche quali soggetti di produzione di cultura, che si aprono a nuove attività coinvolgendo forze di lavoro sempre più sempre più articolate e diversificate.

La Fiera Internazionale del Libro

In considerazione del suo impegno a favore dei più significativi eventi culturali legati al libro e alla lettura, la Compagnia di San Paolo è da anni il principale sostenitore privato della Fiera Internazionale del Libro una manifestazione che assume quest'anno particolare rilievo in relazione alla designazione da parte dell'UNESCO di Torino quale capitale mondiale del libro per l'anno 2006 - 2007. Il sostegno della Compagnia intende pertanto rafforzare la presenza della Fiera nel panorama mondiale del libro, ma anche e soprattutto sottolineare il ruolo di Torino quale grande centro internazionale di cultura.

Palazzo Carignano
un restauro non solo di facciata

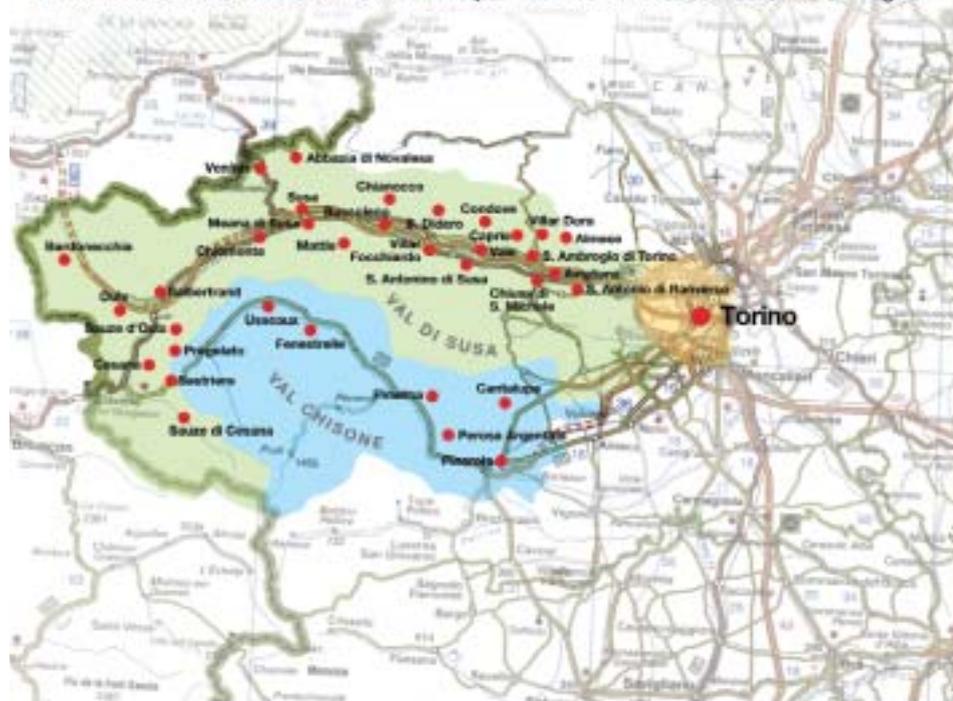

Oggi Palazzo Carignano viene restituito alla città in tutto il suo splendore. Sono state restaurate le facciate, ma non solo anche l'atrio e la scalone, capolavori di Giovanni Guarini, sono tornati alla originaria bellezza.

È l'impegno della Compagnia di San Paolo è destinato a proseguire: dal prossimo occupato dell'Appartamento del principe di Salaparuta del Museo Nazionale del Risorgimento Italiano.

Un intervento complesso, non solo di facciata, per migliorare la qualità della vita dei torinesi e per contribuire a fare di Torino una capitale di arte e di cultura.

La Compagnia di San Paolo per Torino 2006

Abbiamo stanziato oltre 31 milioni di euro per 130 interventi che lasceranno un segno

Torino giocherà parte del proprio futuro sulla gestione lungimirante della "eredità olimpica". Abbiamo quindi voluto concentrare la nostra attenzione - fin dalla fase della candidatura di Torino - sulle Olimpiadi e Paralimpiadi come opportunità per rafforzare il potenziale civile, culturale ed economico del territorio torinese e piemontese, con interventi che consentissero sia di preparare al meglio il grande evento sia di "guardare oltre", avendo in mente anzitutto la crescita della qualità della vita degli abitanti.

La Compagnia di San Paolo per le Paralimpiadi Torino 2006

Per le più grandi Paralimpiadi di tutti i tempi e per le loro eredità, la Compagnia ha stanziato complessivamente 12,9 milioni di euro:

- a favore del Sistema sanitario pubblico regionale per il potenziamento delle apparecchiature destinate all'assistenza medica nel periodo dei Giochi che saranno poi assegnate alle strutture sanitarie pubbliche coinvolte nell'evento;
- a sostegno del progetto "Trasporto Accessibile", che permetterà di attivare, sul territorio montano e nei siti di gara, un servizio di trasporto per i passeggeri con disabilità, grazie alla dotazione di veicoli allestiti appositamente e che, al termine dell'evento, passeranno alle Comunità Montane e ad altri enti regionali operanti a favore di persone con disabilità.

- a favore del Comune di Torino con l'obiettivo di consolidare e rendere permanente nel tempo la connessione, la riabilitazione e la pratica dello sport per i disabili tramite le strutture create per il periodo olimpico.

The Historical Archives

San Paolo's rich stock of early documents is not a closed collection. It has been unceasingly joined by the items of historical interest produced initially by Istituto Bancario San Paolo di Torino and then (since 1991) by the Compagnia di San Paolo. For a number of years, therefore, the archive has been engaged, together with the Bank, in the completion of a census of the latter's records at its head offices in Piedmont and the rest of Italy in order to identify the documents pertaining to the Compagnia and rationalise the organisation of the Bank's archives. In 2005, a close survey was made of the first set of records, namely those deposited on the approximately 700 metres of shelving at the Secretary's Office in Piazza San Carlo. The main (mostly 20th-century) collections are appurtenant to the Compagnia. Their headings are: President's office, Vice-President's office, General Manager's office, General secretary's office (general business, grants, staff, advertising, relations, coordination, equity investments, legal consultancy and proceedings). Quite apart from their bulk (more than 400 metres), these records are of high quality and relate to matters of importance recorded in the archives of the Bank's presidents, directors and general managers, as well as the minutes of the meetings of deliberative bodies and copies of decrees and service orders. The archives of the Grants Office contain the records of the contributions allocated since the end of the war.

The preservation and inventorying operations included the restoration of four 19th-century volumes and completion of the index of the meetings of the deliberative bodies of the Istituto San Paolo di Torino e aggregati archives. The agenda and the names and offices of those present at each meeting are indicated.

Additions to the studies generated by the researches of external users and conducted partly or entirely at the archives included the publication by C. Bermond Riccardo Gualino finanziere e imprenditore. Un protagonista dell'economia italiana nel Novecento (Torino, Centro Studi Piemontesi), which has a chapter on the rise of the Bank following its takeover of the deposits of Banca Agricola Italiana in 1931. Three degree theses were discussed at the Turin Polytechnic and the University of Turin. Their subjects were: Turin's excise and toll boundaries, Fascism's welfare policy and The origins of the Compagnia di San Paolo.

In addition to making its records available to the community, the Archive is taking part in cultural appreciation initiatives and promoting studies and researches. It took part, for example, in the Torino al lavoro. Dalla ricostruzione allo sviluppo exhibition inaugurated during the Olympic period through the loan of photos of its staff and the air-raid damage in Piazza San Carlo. On the occasion of the exhibition of rare and early books organised by some Turinese collectors for the visit of the Société des Bibliophiles François, it displayed some of its more valuable pieces, including 14th- and 15th-century parchments, imperial diplomas and letters patent issued by Louis XIII and Louis XIV of France.

The "Quaderni dell'Archivio Storico" series was joined by the second volume of Per una storia della Compagnia di San Paolo by W. Crivellin and B. Signorelli (eds.). This contains three essays: Il patrimonio artistico della Compagnia di San Paolo by L. De Fanti, La costruzione della nuova sede della Compagnia di San Paolo nell'isolato San Felice (1701-1704) by B. Signorelli, and La Compagnia di San Paolo alla metà del XVIII secolo. Una élite politico-economica tra corte e municipalità by A. Merlotti.

In conjunction with the Associazione Nazionale Archivistica Italiana, the Archive promoted the long-term training project entitled "Rivedere conti". La descrizione archivistica delle scritture, dei registri contabili e dei bilanci di banche e aziende in età moderna e contemporanea. This is designed to supply archivists, who are usually endowed with a humanistic background, with the ways and means of identifying and archiving such documents through an illustration of their purpose and use, an explanation of the evolution of accounting regulations, and the history of accounting. The first seminar focussed on the modern period and the 19th century. It was held on 17 and 18 February 2005 at the Archives Office in the villa known as Vigna di Madama Reale and at the State Archives. Some fifty archivists from banks, enterprises, cultural organisations, State archivists, officials of historical monuments commissions, university researchers, historians, professional archivists, and officers and managers of economic bodies listened to papers read by economic history lecturers on general matters and the examination of typical documents. G. Felloni and C. Bermond dealt with credit instruments from the end of the Middle Ages to the start of the 20th century using copies of bills of exchange, surety agreements, loan contracts, exchange contracts, censuses, final statements and balance sheets from the Banco di San Giorgio at Genoa and the Compagnia di San Paolo, along with budget forecasts, inventories, ledgers, daybooks and notebooks from Banca Sella and San Paolo. On the subject of corporate accounting, G. Bracco illustrated the accounts of the 16th-century farming estate of Lucedio Abbey, and those of two 18th-century Turinese firms: Tintoria reale di sete di Torino and Reale fabbrica di vetri e cristalli. The seminar ended with an overview of modern government accounting.

The Financial Picture

Composition of the portfolio in 2005

The overall market value of the Compagnia's assets at the end of 2005 rose by 13.8% from 6,905 million euros in 2004 to 7,750 million, net of operating expenses, taxes, and outflows for grants.

The pie chart shows the portfolio split into a managed and a strategic part. The latter comprises the Compagnia's interest in SANPAOLO IMI S.p.A which together with a small liquidity margin accounts for 51% of the market value of the portfolio as a whole.

Returns in 2005

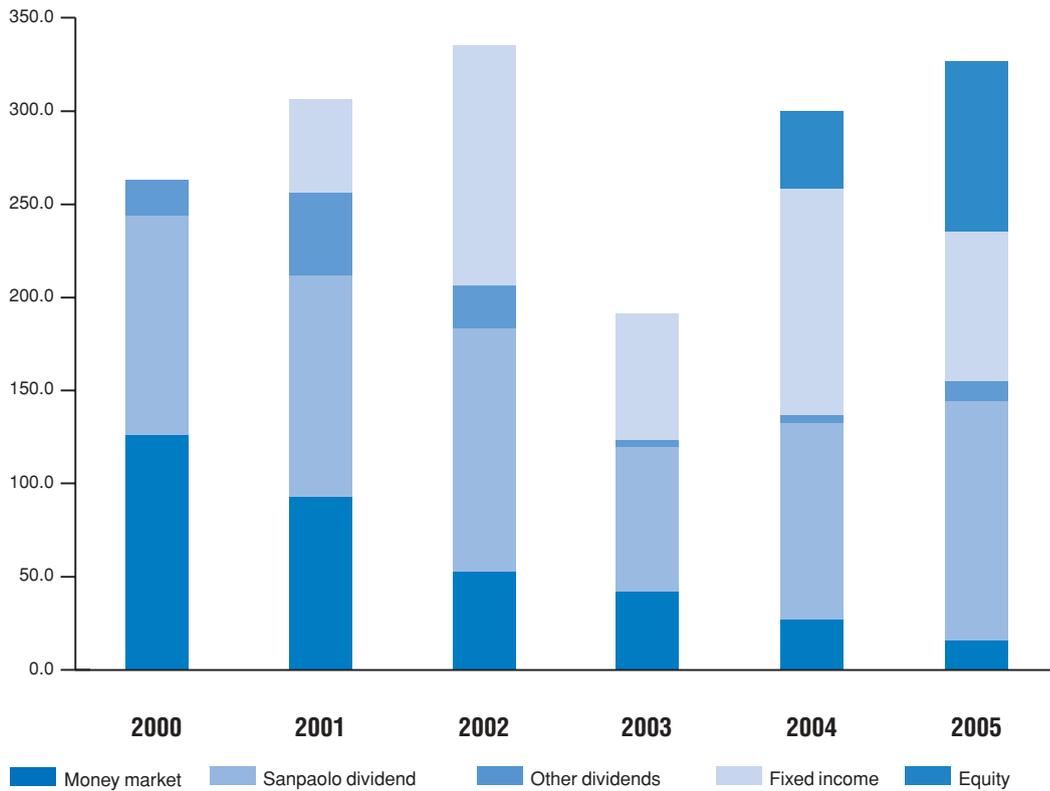

Returns from financial management in 2005 consisted of total returns (at market value) for funds and capital investments. Data thus include accruals, capital gains/losses not realised and dividends earned from equity investments.

The Compagnia's net ordinary revenues increased by 10.7% to 336 million euros and were composed of dividends (137 million), income from monetary investments (23 million, including tax credits posted on the accounts), and total return from managed bonds (80 million) and revenues from managed equity investments (96 million).

The following histogram illustrates the extent to which the Foundation's sources of income have been diversified over the last six years.

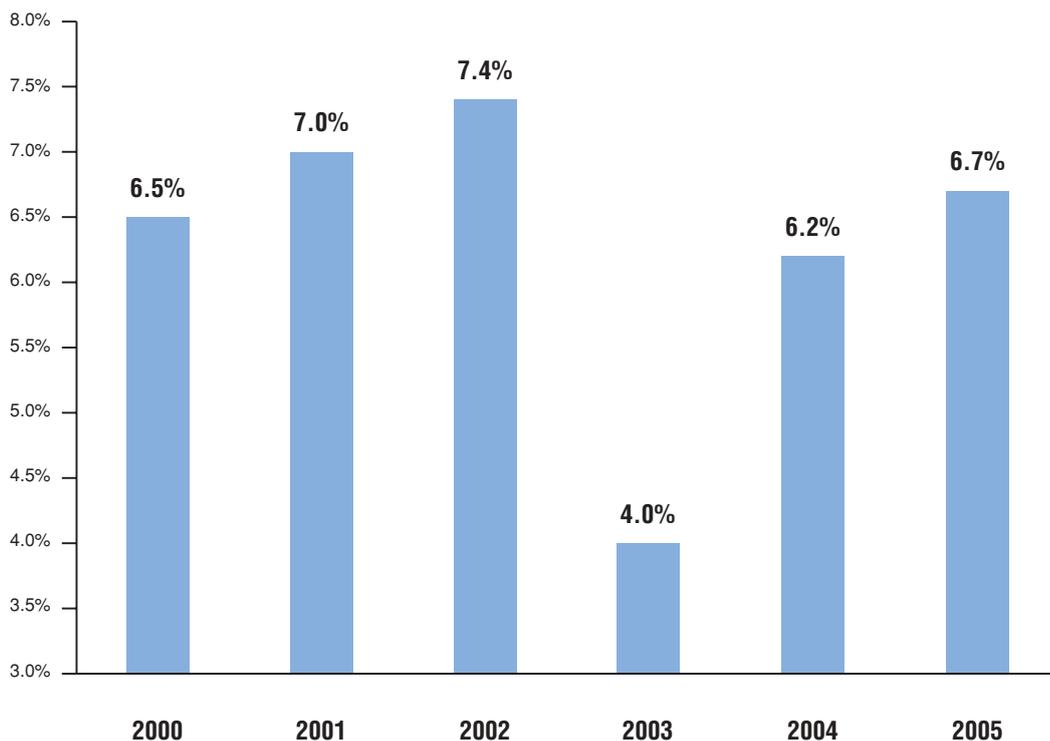

Ordinary net revenues by source

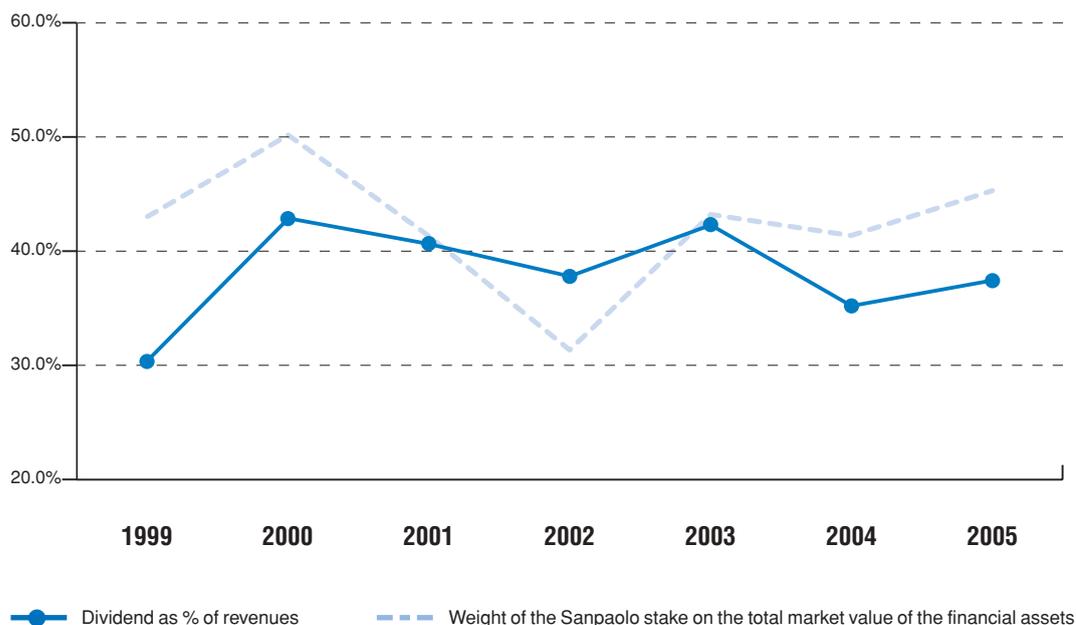

The rate of return, calculated as the ratio of total income (excluding gains/losses on San Paolo IMI stake) to book value of the financial assets, was 6.7%.

Ordinary net revenues generated by financing activities

In addition, market value of the Compagnia's equity investment in SANPAOLO IMI increased by 25% in 2005. This can be compared with the 21% rise of the top 500 European shares and the 26.5% increase in the European bank index.

A six-year overview of the relative weight of this investment shows that it has always accounted for less than 50% of the total market value of the holdings (mean 42% for the period), while the contribution of its dividends to the total net revenues is even lower (38%). These two figures underscore the importance of diversification in the management of the Compagnia's portfolio.

The managed portfolio

The equity component of the managed portfolio increased from 456 million euros at the end of 2004 to more than 770 million at the end of 2005. At the same time fixed income has lost ground owing to the new allocation strategy, though their total at the end of the year was still 1,640 million, including both the nominal and the inflation-linked component, which constitutes some 15-20% of the whole. Monetary investments, too, gradually shrank during 2005.

The year's highlights:

- cessation of all direct management of the portfolio, with the sole exception of equity stakes;
- launching of reserved common funds managed by Fondaco;
- assignment of new equity mandates;
- start-up of the private equity programme. This will constitute about 10% on average of the managed portfolio;
- identification of funds and strategies appropriate for the temporary approximation of the exposure to alternative investments (private equity and hedge funds) during the time required for their realisation;
- rebalancing of the managed portfolio following the approval of the new strategic investment policy.

The performance of both the bond and equity managers selected by the Compagnia have been more than positive in absolute terms. Only equity managers have significantly outperformed relative to the benchmarks.

The investment strategy

During 2005, and in keeping with the appointment of the Compagnia's new governing bodies, the investment strategy has been completely reviewed.

Main changes stem from the experience acquired by the Compagnia over the last four years, from international comparisons, and from the wish to take up attractive organisational opportunities and the new possibilities offered by financial markets. Their compass is illustrated in the following main features:

- a new formulation of the spending policy: it has been defined in constant real terms starting from an average level of 130 million euros, with a 2.5% maximum and a 1% minimum limit geared to the total market value of the assets. The Compagnia has thus achieved a balance between its need for stability and the planning of its grant programmes and the need to safeguard its capital. The financial objective has been confirmed as 3% with respect to an average year-end market value of all the assets over the past 4 years.
- split of the portfolio into two sections: the "strategic portfolio" consisting of the whole SANPAOLO IMI stake plus a liquidity margin, and the "managed portfolio". Both components, albeit distinct, contribute to the attainment of the Compagnia's long-term financial objectives. Strategic allocation and rebalancing have been confined to the managed portfolio. This is now greatly diversified and has been entirely placed in the hands of external financial managers.
- a new strategic allocation of the managed portfolio is founded on the Compagnia's long-term objectives. Investments are divided into six asset classes:

Asset class	% of managed portfolio	Benchmark
Euro money market (*)	15%	JPM 3 Months TR Index
Nominal and real fixed income	45%	Citigroup EMU Government Bond Index
European equities	10%	MSCI Europe TR Index
World equities	10%	MSCI World TR Index
Absolute return	10%	JPM 3 Months TR Index plus 3%
Non-marketable alternatives	10%	MSCI World TR Index plus 4%

(*) including tax credits

- outsourcing of executive and specialist activities to Fondaco SGR. Fondaco SGR is an asset management company owned by three foundations (Compagnia di San Paolo, Fondazione C.R. Padova e Rovigo, Fondazione C.R. in Bologna) in partnership with Ersel Finanziaria S.p.A. It has been entrusted with the operative support activities and the designing and creation of investment vehicles, together with the risk management previously handled by the Compagnia's staff;
- risk control as a management tool. Risk management is a complementary feature of the investment process. It is primarily directed to monitoring the congruency of the strategic allocation with the Compagnia's long-term objectives and expenditure requirements;
- introduction of socially responsible and mission-related investments. In line with the nature of its activities as an institution, the Compagnia has deemed it proper to begin to apply social responsibility criteria to the financial management of its assets. Definition of these criteria stems from an awareness that it is only through an overall evaluation of the nature of the business of the issuing companies, their operating mechanisms, and their corporate conduct vis-à-vis the community and their employees, customers and suppliers that an investor can define a universe of investment opportunities without sacrificing his financial objectives, along with the realisation that virtuous behaviour is in large measure functional to the creation of value. In addition the "non-marketable alternatives" class has been endowed with a "programme bias" component directed to financial instruments or funds whose investment strategy envisages participation in projects of significance for local development, or are assimilable to those which already benefit from the Compagnia's grants (mission-related investments).
